ESTABLISHED 1846. NEWPORT, R. I., THURSDAY, JANUARY 25, 1906. PRICE TWO CENTS.

BEWARE!

If, when you entered your friends' house, his little boy should fill your eye with the contents of the squirt gun you gave him at Xmas, no matter what occurred afterwards you'd feel like warming the seat of his trousers. You see the point—an impression once made is hard to rub off.

Your Hall.

Ever think of the impression the appearance of your hall might create on the minds of people who come to see you? You give them your best smile when you greet them in the parlor, but how about the shiver they get when they look in the hall dear. If you want to get popular better fill the hall with smiles. Furnish it, make it look cosy, comfortable, inviting. The hall isn't the easiest place in the world to make look right. Come talk it over with us, it's part of our business to solve these furnishing problems for you. We have the things to do it with and the little cost would repay you ten times over.

A LIBERAL LAW FOR CORPORATIONS

Follows Closely Those Existing in Other States.

Democrats Introduce Many Old and New Bills.

(Special despatch to the News.)

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 25.—The Democrats were busy in the General Assembly today, introducing new and old legislation.

In the senate Senator McKenna introduced an act to repeal the act creating the state returning board, which was referred to the judiciary committee.

The governor announced the appointment of J. Fred Parker as commissioner of the Providence & Worcester railroad, and the re-appointment of Charles H. Sparks of Warren as a member of the side path commission, of Joseph P. Moseley and Joseph B. C. Farnham as members of the committee in charge of the expenditures of the firemen's relief fund, and of Dr. William H. Peters of Providence as a member of the board of trustees of the state sanatorium, and the nominations were tabled under the rules.

The re-appointments were confirmed of Seth S. Gatchell and Philip S. Chase as members of the state board of soldiers' relief and of Clarence C. Wordell of Little Compton as a member of the state board of agriculture.

In the house Mr. Bowen introduced a resolution making an appropriation of $8,000 for armory rents for the independent companies of the state. Referred to the committee on militia.

Mr. Rice introduced an act providing for a secretary for the harbor commission. Referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Crafts introduced what he called a liberal corporation law, for corporations intending to do business outside the state. It provides for a franchise tax and follows closely the laws of New Jersey, Maine and Nebraska. It was referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Rattey resurrected the act restricting the hours of street railway employes to 10 in 12 consecutive hours. Referred to the committee on special legislation.

Also, the act prohibiting sheriffs paying money for the appointment of deputy sheriffs. Sent to the judiciary committee.

Also, the act providing for the inspection of illuminating gas. Referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Herrick introduced an act providing for the election of the school committee in Woonsocket by the people. Referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Ball of New Shoreham introduced a bill providing the Australian ballot system for that town. Referred to the judiciary committee.

There was a little breeze over the appointment of a committee to investigate the court house in Washington county. The original motion was for the appointment of a special committee, but the judiciary committee recommended that the investigation be made by the regular committee on public institutions. After considerable debate the original resolution was passed.

Both houses adjourned to Friday at 11 o'clock.

LATEST NAVAL NEWS.

Orders to Officers and Movements of Vessels Reported Today.

[Special despatch to the News.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The following orders to officers were issued by the Navy Department today:

Rear Admiral Charles H. Stockton, ordered to Washington for duty as president of the board of inspection and survey.

Lieutenant Commander A. Rust, ordered to the navy yard, Washington.

The following movements of naval vessels were reported today to the department:

Sailed—Rocket, from Norfolk for Washington; Nashville, from San Juan for Puerto Plata; Dixie, from Guantanamo for Pensacola.

Arrived—Villalobos at Ching Kiang, Quitos at Nanking, Denver at St. Kitts, Lebanon at Boston, Celtic at New York, Yankton at San Juan, Scorpion at Monte Christi, Charleston at Hampton Roads, Raleigh at Amoy, Pennsylvania and West Virginia at Culebra, Dubuque at Santo Domingo City.

BOUND FOR FORT DE FRANCE.

French Cruisers Will Probably Not Go to La Guayra.

PORT OF SPAIN, Island of Trinidad, Jan. 25.—It is now believed that French armored cruiser Dessix, flying the flag of Admiral Bevue de La Peyrere, and cruiser Jurien de La Graviere, which have sailed from this port for an unknown destination, are bound for Fort de France, Island of Martinique, and not for La Guayra, Venezuela, as at first supposed. One French cruiser remains at this port.

SIR EDWARD GREY RETURNED.

Gibbs Resigns Seat in Favor of ex-Premier Balfour.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Sir Edward Grey, the new foreign secretary, has been returned for Berwick-on-Tweed division of Northumberland by the largest majority he ever had. Out of 21 returns this morning the Liberals take 17 seats, 12 of which were captured from the Unionists. The totals are: Liberals 328, Unionists 142, Irish Nationalists 81, Laborites 48.

Alban G. H. Gibbs, Unionist, has resigned his seat for the city of London in favor of former Premier Balfour, who has accepted the committee's invitation to be a candidate to represent the constituency. A writ for a new election cannot be issued until Parliament meets, so that Mr. Balfour will not be present at the opening of the House, which will be his first absence from that ceremony for 31 years.

THE TOPEKA PICKS UP A LIFE RAFT.

Had 20 Survivors of the Valencia on Board.

Men in Pitiable Condition and Almost Dead.

SEATTLE, Washn., Jan. 25.—A special representative of the Post Intelligencer wired from Port Angles at 3:30 a. m. that rescue ship City of Topeka picked up a life raft at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, six miles off Cape Beale, with 20 survivors of the Valencia on board. The men were in a pitiable condition and almost dead from exposure.

The rescued are: G. D. Harden, passenger; M. Tarpey, quartermaster; P. O'Brien, waiter; W. Raymond, mess man; W. L. Johnson, coal passer; J. C. Eggls, fireman; C. F. Leene, baker; Frank Lehn, first freight clerk; Joseph McCaffrey, passenger; J. L. Welch, waiter; A. H. Akins, passenger; P. Peterson, second officer; J. Pouldeni, waiter; John Johnson, third cook; C. L. Allison, passenger from St. Paul; John Cigodas, fireman; Thomas Garrick, first assistant engineer; G. Willis, passenger; P. Prince, fireman; P. Doherty, fireman.

The condition of the survivors was pitiable; they were half-frozen and practically unconscious from the exposure. The raft was sighted about 12 o'clock, but owing to the thick weather it was supposed to be nothing but a log. At last by the aid of a powerful glass its true nature was determined. A terrible wash was running. One minute the raft would be poised on top of a wave and then next it would be lost from view in the gully formed by the mountainous breakers. On their frail support the men battled bravely with a pair of oars to reach the City of Topeka, which, owing to the dangerous coast, could not run in any closer. Within half a mile from the raft a boat was lowered from the Topeka, in charge of Second Mate Burke, who, with much difficulty, succeeded in making fast a line to the raft. The spectators on the Topeka watched the struggling of the gallant seamen breathlessly. One minute they were high in the air and the next lost to sight. At last they succeeded in bringing the raft to the side of the steamer.

The sight of the poor creatures on the raft brought tears to the eyes of the sailors on the vessel. In the stern of the raft sat an old man, with snow white hair and pallid features, who held on bravely to his place. Three others were lying in a senseless heap in the rear, washed by every swell and retained solely by the bodies of the other men who were closely packed. Time and time again great seas swept over them, sending a shudder through the on-lookers, who feared to see them swept away. The work of rescuing them was dangerous. The men were too exhausted to even tie a rope about themselves. For a minute it looked as though the old man with gray hair was gone when the raft gave a sudden lurch, but the prompt work of Mate Burke and his men finally got him on deck.

This man was no sooner safe when another fainting form was swept away and was only rescued by quick work on the part of the boat's crew. The next man to be swept from the raft managed to grasp a line and cling to it until he was hoisted half way up the ship's side, when his strength gave out and he fell back. He was picked up by the boat.

The raft put out from the wreck yesterday morning on sighting steamer Queen and attempted to reach her, but before they could get within sight-

REGARDED AS A MOVE FORWARD

French and German Delegates Meet Privately.

Produces Feeling of Optimism at Conference.

ALGECIRAS, Spain, Jan. 25.—Herr Von Radowitz, head of the German mission, and M. Revoil, chief of the French delegation to the Moroccan conference, had for the first time today a long private meeting, which was much commented upon as a move forward in the adjustment of the Franco-German differences. Although the results were not disclosed, the meeting produced a distinct feeling of optimism among the delegates.

Heretofore the German and French representatives had maintained only ceremonious relations, but the other plenipotentiaries, chiefly the Marquis Visconti Venosta, head of the Italian delegation, and Ambassador White, the chief representative of America, tactfully contributed to bring about this morning's meeting, with the view of securing a close personal exchange of views.

Some of the ambassadors have expressed the opinion that these direct Franco-German exchanges might contribute to averting a crisis in the conference.

The delegates will informally consider the advisability of entrusting a small neutral power with the organization of the Moroccan police. Switzerland has been much favored, on the ground that she is distinctly neutral between France and Germany. However, the objection is raised that Switzerland lacks the naval and military forces necessary to effectively enforce her control in case of complications within Morocco.

The conference met again this afternoon to consider the financial questions.

OPPOSED BY THE HOUSE.

Proposals Made by the New Japanese Finance Minister.

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—The new finance minister, M. Sakatani, in a statement in the house of representatives today, said he proposed to convert $80,000,000 of the war taxes into permanent imposts and to establish a debt with a consolidation fund for the service, of which $55,000,000 would be devoted annually, in addition to the $18,000,000 hitherto assigned for the same purpose. Both proposals were strongly opposed by the house. The premier, M. Saionji, emphasized the necessity for a united national effort to cope with the heavy expenditure which the war had entailed.

WILL NOT APPEAR AT OIL HEARING.

Frank Rockefeller Refuses to Give Testimony.

Says They May Send Him to Jail If They Want To.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 25.—Frank Rockefeller refused to appear before Attorney General Hadley and testify today in the hearing in connection with the action of the state of Missouri against the Standard Oil Company.

A deputy sheriff served a subpoena upon Mr. Rockefeller last evening. Today the deputy reported that Mr. Rockefeller had said: "I won't appear. I can't appear, and there is no use talking about it. They may send me to jail if they want to."

No service was obtained on John Teagle, W. E. Judd, W. P. Lowe, or W. P. McKee. Lowe is of the Navarre Oil Company and Judd & McKee of the Republic Oil Company.

This Morning's News.

ONLY 15 SURVIVORS.

About 140 Persons Believed to Have Perished in Valencia Wreck.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 24.—Although the latest news from the wreck of the Valencia is conflicting, it is probable that 140 lives were lost, while only 15 persons were saved. The report from steamship Queen that 25 passengers were clinging to the vessel's rigging with little chance of saving only of them was followed by the story that the wreck had gone to pieces. As only 15 survivors have been heard from so far, it is probable that the loss of life will reach 140.

The 15 persons saved are: F. F. Junker, formerly assistant superintendent of schools at Santa Rosa, Cal., who lost his wife and two daughters; J. Riehlle, fireman; Carl Samuel, passenger; Mike Hone, R. Brown, A. Hosoda, Oakland; T. J. McCarthy, boatswain; Thomas Shields; O. Campbell, who lost his wife and daughter; F. N. Ledhos, fireman; Albert Wells, U. S. N.; John Marks, W. Goslin, T. Campson, C. Brown, boy, San Francisco.

The correspondent of the Associated Press, on board steamer Salvor, has wired from Bamfield as follows:

"Steamer Valencia was located by steamer Queen at 9 a. m. today off Point Planaway, about five miles from Cape Beale. Tug Czar went in to investigate and reported that the steamer was ashore, stem first, with her decks swept clean by the seas, with the exception of a small part of the house and her two masts standing. No one could be seen alive on board. In the rigging of the foremast was what the captain of tug Czar took to be a signal, although he was unable to say whether it was a piece of sail or a human being clinging to the rigging.

"Steamer Salvor stood in for about two miles, but was unable to go any further, as there was a heavy sea and a westerly gale was blowing, making it highly dangerous if not impossible to make a closer approach. The wreck was within three quarters of a mile from the wreck, but could go no further toward the Valencia, and after making as complete an examination as possible she returned to the Quadra and Salvor. The latter steamer and Tug Czar then left for Bamfield Creek, the Queen standing by her companion liner. When the Salvor left the scene there was a heavy swell from the southwest and rain was falling in torrents.

"The Queen reported having heard three gun shots shortly before the arrival of the Salvor, but nothing of any living person was to be seen."

CANNON IN COMPLETE CONTROL.

Forty-three Republican "Insurgents" Voted With Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—When the smoke of the liveliest legislative battle had cleared in the House today Speaker Cannon and his organization were in complete control, and the Joint statehood program of the administration had been adopted. Forty-three Republican "insurgents" went down to defeat, having voted valiantly with the Democrats to gain control of the rule the terms of which are to govern the statehood bill in its passage through the House. The vote ordering the previous question on the rule was 187 ayes and 162 noes. This clearly defeated the opposition, the full strength of which was polled, and little interest was taken on the vote for the adoption of the rule, which immediately followed, and was carried by a majority of 26.

Previous to the vote the debate on the rule proceeded under high tension. The speeches were short, but were hot and full of sting. Every member who could be brought to the city by special summons was in his place, the galleries were packed and participated with evident relish in the successful of laughter and applause.

The veterans, Payne, Dalzell and Grosvenor, upheld the organization. Pitted against them were the leaders of the insurgents, Babcock, Mondell and Jones of Washington.

The humorous speech of the day was delivered by J. Adam Bede, who filled five minutes with an address that evoked applause and merriment.

Mr. Pawney, one of the erstwhile insurgents, arose and announced his acquiescence to the will of the organization and Mark Smith, the veteran Delegate from Arizona, just as solemnly fully interjected "The most unkind thrust of all."

Mr. Dalzell demanded a roll-call on ordering the previous question on the adoption of the rule. The roll-call began at 3:15 o'clock. Speaker Cannon requested the call of his own name and voted for the rule. The rule was adopted, the vote being 192 ayes, 162 noes.

The following Republicans voted with the Democrats on the first vote ordering the previous question on the rules:

Messrs. Adams (Wis.), Babcock, Bede, Bonifer, Bonynge, Brooks (Col.), Brown, Calderhead, Cushman, Dalzell, Davidson, Esch, French, Fulkerson, Gillette (Cal.), Goebel, Grosvenor, Hayes, Hermann, Howell (Utah), Humphrey (Wash.), Jones (Wash.), Kahn, Kennedy (O.), Knowland, Lamb, Lorimer, Loud, McCreary (Pa.), McKinley (Cal.), McLachlan, McMorran, Madison, Mercer, Mondell, Madd, Murphy, Needham, Olcott, Reeder, Sherman, Smith (Cal.), Stevenson, Thomas (O.), Wachter—43.

Mr. Williams asked for a reconsideration of the vote, which was granted, after much opposition by the Speaker, who stated that the rule had been carried by a larger majority, and such action was not usual.

On the motion for the adoption of the rule Mr. Williams demanded another roll call which was ordered.

The rule was adopted by a vote of 187 to 157. Mr. Crumpacker (Ind.) took the chair and debate on the bill was once begun in committee of the whole.

After the rule had been adopted general debate proceeded on the measure until 5:45 o'clock, but because of the foregone conclusion made clear by the vote on the rule, the debate lost practically all its interest.

ESTATE GOES TO GRANDSONS.

Marshall Field Made Bequests of $17,000,000 to Relatives and Friends.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—By the will of Marshall Field filed today in the probate court, the city of Chicago is made beneficiary of $8,000,000 for the downtown and north-water park. The Field Columbian Museum, now situated in Jackson Park, receives bequests aggregating $12,500,000 are made to relatives and friends of the testator.

With these exceptions, the entire estate is to be kept intact until one of the two sons of Marshall Field, Jr., grandsons of the testator, shall have reached the age of 30 years. The grandsons are now 9 and 12 years old. Marshall Field, Jr., died November 27, 1905, of a bullet wound accidentally inflicted while handling a revolver.

The executors of the will are the Merchants Loan and Trust Company, Chauncey Keep, an old friend of Mr. Field, and Arthur B. Jones, for many years Mr. Field's secretary.

The business of Marshall Field & Co. is to be maintained as a portion of the residuary estate.

Because of failure to file a petition for the appointment of administrators, the total value of the estate was not furnished to the court.

The will of Mr. Field is an extraordinary document, covering 32 typewritten pages and making, with the two codicils, 12,000 words. The document is drawn with the utmost care, and it is difficult to imagine any contingency that has not been foreseen by Mr. Field.

MATERIAL PART OF EVIDENCE.

Carter's Papers and Correspondence Admitted by Judge Speer.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 24.—F. M. Smith, clerk in the War Department at Washington, was the first witness on the stand in the Greene and Gaynor trial today. His evidence related to the disposition there of the papers in the Carter case.

Edward T. Johnson, national bank examiner and detailed as custodian of the great mass of documentary evidence in the Carter and Greene and Gaynor cases, also testified regarding the papers in the case.

J. W. C. Sharp, chief clerk in the office of Captain Carter and his successor, was recalled and identified a letter from Barrow & Osborne, attorneys, to Captain Carter, written in 1898, and requesting specifications for a certain contract. Carter replied, asking for whom the specifications were wanted.

The attorneys responded that they wanted them for R. A. Johnson, Augusta, Ga., whereas the government contends that the specifications were really desired for Venable Brothers, Atlanta contractors.

Carter, the government contends, then sent them to R. A. Johnson direct, so that Venable Brothers did not get the specifications and were not able to get in a bid against Greene and Gaynor.

Objection was raised by the defense to the introduction as evidence of a letter press book of Carter showing his military history, the defense maintaining that typewritten portions of it dated therein were irrelevant and showed nothing relating to the alleged conspiracy.

Judge Speer said that the book had been identified by the witness as having been annotated by him and that the book and its contents are admissible.

There ensued a controversy among counsel for the government and the counsel as to the admissibility as evidence of a copy of a letter written by Carter in 1886 to General C. A. Dunn, to show "his state of mind," as the government counsel declared.

Judge Speer announced that the matter is one of great importance, entering largely into the determination or admission of much of the evidence of the case, probably, so a recess of an hour and a half was taken, while he prepared an opinion, overruling the objection.

The letter to General Dunne, chief of engineers, was then read by Greene. In that Carter set forth that he did not believe it would be wise to let the contract for the dredging on account of Colonel Gillespie's death he would like to be relieved and harbor districts as he had become familiar and was familiar with all requirements and with the progress of conditions and with the progress of the work then under way and that under contemplation.

A letter of Captain Carter to Ambassador Hay in 1897, referring to Carter's appointment as attache to the Court of St. James was read, the document asking that its exceptions to the jurors failing regarding the admission of all these letters of Carter be noted. One of these documents was a telegram to General Alger, Secretary of War, dated July 17, 1897. It was as follows:

"Wilmer Miller says he will not consent to become a member of the Spanish court commission. Take the Secretaryship suggesting the hopeless ass. With such Washington tomorrow."

The court adjourned until tomorrow.

....Edward De Mille Campbell, professor of chemical engineering and analytical chemistry in the University of Michigan, is totally blind, yet in his line is considered one of the best authorities in the country.

....H. E. Huntington is preparing to establish a permanent Indian exhibition in southern California. It will have a group of over fifty of the Indians in North America permanently quartered there, besides an out gathering containing Indian photographs. The Indians will live in their primitive habitations, clothed in their native dress, and will engage in various handicrafts.

....Alfred Beit, the South African millionaire king, is said to be richer even than Rockefeller. Half the mines in South Africa belong to him, including the fabulous wealth of Kimberley's diamond output. The aggregate of his wealth cannot be stated, but a rough estimate places it at $[illegible]. His yearly income is $[illegible], which means that he gets $10a every minute of his life, or, to put it another way, $[illegible] a week.

....Stephen Hosse and his wife have started from Wichita, Kas., for Germany, upon special invitation from Emperor William to join in celebrating his silver wedding anniversary. Mr. Hosse is a sculptor. Twenty-five years ago he was a sergeant in a German infantry regiment in which the present Kaiser was captain. When the prince was married, February 27, 1881, the members of his company were guests of honor. Surviving members are to be honored again at the anniversary.

VANDERBILT ALLEN SUES FOR DAMAGES.

The $25,000 damage suit of William S. Vanderbilt Allen of New York against Dr. Frederick H. Rolund, president of the Westport Sanitarium Association, will be tried before a jury in the civil superior court of Fairfield County, Conn. Mr. Allen, who is a relative of the late Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, alleges that he was seized and held a captive at the Westport sanatorium for six years, from December 1, 1896, to January 1, 1902. The defendants allege that Mr. Allen was not of sound mind and was placed in the sanitorium for treatment, and that he was never an unwilling captive there. Mr. Allen has been living at Westport.

GRAND ARMY FLAG DAY.

Suggestions for its Observance Sent to Teachers and Pupils.

Public School Commissioner's Circular for Exercises in Honor of Lincoln's Birthday.

Walter E. Ranger, commissioner of public schools, has issued the usual circular to the schools of the state regarding the observance of Grand Army Flag day, Lincoln's birthday, February 12. The address is in two parts, one to teachers and the other to pupils, as follows:

To Teachers:

The approach of Grand Army Flag day reminds us of the worthy duty and inspiring opportunity of its loyal observance. In the law requiring that the twelfth day of February shall be observed, in honor of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, with patriotic exercises in the public schools, the State charges each teacher with a special and significant commission. The realization of the high purpose of our lawmakers in establishing this day is dependent upon the teacher's full appreciation of its meaning and promise and his loyal execution of its design. In honoring the Grand Army, in exalting the realities symbolized by the flag, in commemorating the lives of patriots, and in paying tribute to what is highest and best in human thought and endeavor, this day offers invaluable opportunity to enkindle patriotic sentiments, to inspire high ideals of conduct, and to energize noble purposes of life in the hearts of children and thereby to contribute a potent influence for a better citizenship.

Patriotism cannot be by observation. No one can add a cubit to the stature of his patriotism merely by taking thought. As spirit or element of life, it grows with life, and reaches fruition only in noble manhood. Likewise there cannot be worthy manhood without love of country. It is not merely thought, ideal, purpose, or action; it is all of these and more, woven with the experience and growth of life into righteous character. Truth, honor and good-will must be lived to be learned. In the love of home and kindred, of school and mates, of farm or city street and neighbors, are the beginnings of a love of country. The loyal pupil of a patriotic school becomes a patriot. If true to itself and loyal to its community, the public school always makes for high patriotism.

The special commemoration of heroic lives, with its expression of patriotic sentiments and reverent honor, inspires a child and youth a love of service, justice, and righteousness. The school must not lose the precious lessons of a day dedicated to, such purpose by the State. To place before the pupil right ideals of life and conduct, as exemplified in the lives and deeds of patriots; to awaken in him a love of truth and honor, as manifested in the lives of those he reveres; to stimulate within him a true regard for the rights of others, especially for the weak, as he learns to honor the strong who serve the weak; and to train him always to do his duty, as real heroes have ever done; to do this is to fulfill the mission of Grand Army Flag Day and to execute the great public trust committed to the teachers by Rhode Island, the civic and ethical training of her children and youth.

To Pupils:

You are not only the children of your homes, but also the children of the public. Every true citizen has a sympathetic interest in you as coming citizens of town, city, state and nation, and in the promise of your manhood and womanhood hopes for a better people and citizenship. In such ways the public especially provides you with all the advantages of school at a great cost of toil and sacrifice, involved in the payment of taxes. In common with others, you receive many benefits supplied by the public through its governments. Parks, playgrounds, museums and libraries show what the public is constantly doing for your welfare. In truth you are within the fond affectionate care of the public, just as you are in the closer care of parents; for the public includes your teachers, friends and neighbors.

I have told you about the love of the public for you that you may trust the public and do the things you are asked to do in the public's schools; that you may have greater love for the people's country, and for the people's flag which teaches truth, honor and good-will; that you may honor the men who, in peace or war, have done the best things for your country, like the great minded and great-hearted Lincoln, and that in a loyal observance of Grand Army Flag day you may learn something of the art of growing in truth, beauty and goodness, of which the world is full and in which your future lives may become rich.

True character grows from rightful conduct. The child who speaks the truth, obeys his mother or teacher, is respectful, holds his temper and is not afraid, is growing truthful, reverent, obedient, self-controlled and brave. The youth who regards the rights and good of others, acts freely and orderly, dares to do right, does as he ought rather than as he wishes, loves honor and scorns for his fellows, is realizing for life equality and freedom, law and justice, fraternity and moral peace.

May this day, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, with its rich meaning of inspiration, touch our hearts and make us all more kindly, more reverent, and more loyal to home, school and country.

Walter E. Ranger,
Commissioner of Public Schools.

The circular contains also a suggestive program for the observance of the anniversary, with appropriate selections for recitation in prose and poetry and songs.

MIDDLETOWN.

Regular correspondence of the News.]

Mrs. George E. Brightman is ill with bronchial and tonsilitis.

Miss Annie Chase, who has been in Providence, returned home yesterday morning.

Mr. George S. Oxx of Newport was a guest of his brother, Mr. Gordon Oxx, Tuesday.

Mrs. Lloyd H. Peabody has been confined to her home for nearly two weeks, her health being much improved since her return from the Newport Hospital, where she spent several weeks in November and December.

About 40 attended the silhouette party Thursday evening. Some 80 silhouettes were posted about the rooms and all were in trying to decipher them. Miss May E. Peckham, guessing 19, won the first prize, a book, "Dorothy Vernon." The second prize was won by Mr. William J. Peckham, who received "The Hoosier Schoolmaster." After the prizes were distributed the silhouettes were sold at auction by Mr. Jesse H. Barker, about $10 being realized from the sale.

What is believed to be the smallest baby on record has been born to Mrs. Chief Rights of Lander, Wyo. The baby weighs only a little more than a pound, its head is only two inches in diameter.

IS IT WINTER?

[Walter A. Sheldon.]

The last wave came down on the town
like a fold,
And Winter became all things other than cold.
The people quit conning the tropical scenes
Played up in the ads of our best magazines.
Sans overcoats, persons appeared on the street,
In Pittsburg a man was knocked out by the heat.

The waists and the hose of the peek-a-boo style
Have blossomed again on our tropical isle.
The furriers' skin games were "put on the blink,"
The saddened coal dealers were driven to drink.
The overcoat soaked where the moth doth not bite,
While we were endowed with degrees Fahrenheit.

Instead of the sleigh bells' glad tinkle-ty-tinks
We hear the clink-clink of the iced summer drinks.
Instead of the white driven snow on the fly
We see driven ice as the ice-cart goes by.
The ice cream purveyors indulge in a smile
While picnics and porch parties come into style.

The wasps and the butterflies, thinking it June,
Too soon have escaped the protecting cocoon.
The redbreast is busy at nesting these days,
The blue robin lays as she carols her lays.
The wasps and the bees from the coal men have wrung
That short but intense monosyllable "Sting!"

Old Winter asks doctors to use the X rays
"To see if his backbone is broken," he says.
The docs say the back-breaking act wasn't done,
Because this poor Winter has never had one.
So why try Jamaica, the tropical coast,
Or Florida either? Just stay home and roast.

P. S.—When warm verse on the weather we make
A few little bets on the outcome we take.
For after the freaks of the heat are rehearsed
We usually find that the verse is reversed.

"Three things," saith the Sage, "pass the guessing of men:
The weather, the women and weather again.")

FANCIES.

"Is the new cook at your house broken in yet?"

"Thoroughly. She's broken into every set of china we've got."—[Yonkers Statesman.

Husband—You know, my dear, my devotion to you is unremitting.

Wife—Yes, I've noticed that when I've been away and wrote to you for money.—[Baltimore American.

"Did you ever feel as if all the world was against you?" queried the pessimist.

"Yes once," replied the optimist. "When I was a boy I fell a distance of 10 feet out of an apple tree."—[Chicago News.

"I'm but a single woman," began the suffrage orator.

"Don't give up hope yet," interjected a matronly person in the audience.

But they frowned upon her as one who had failed to catch the spirit of the occasion.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

"The main trouble with pedestrianism as an exercise," said the man with mental symbiosis, "is that when a fellow first begins it his friends declare he is crazy, and that when he has been at it two or three days, he begins to share their opinion."—[Judge.

"I believe," said the cheery philosopher, "that for every single thing you give away two come back to you."

"That's my experience," agreed Phunley. "Last June I gave away my daughter and she and her husband came back to us in August."—[Philadelphia Press.

The election returns indicated beyond a doubt that the political boss was beaten out of his boots. He had been defeated in every precinct.

"What are you going to do now, colonel?" his faithful followers asked him.

"Gentlemen," he said, inflating his chest and speaking in a voice of thunder, "I have made up my mind to retire from political leadership."—[Chicago Tribune.

"Ma," said little Elsie, "there's a funny old man in this Pickwick book that's always telling his son to 'beware of the widows.' What does that mean?"

"Well," replied her mother, "a widow is supposed to be skilful in catching a husband."

"Gracious! I wonder if I'll have to be a widow before I can get married."—[Philadelphia Press.

"ESSAYS IN APPLICATION."

A New Volume from the Pen of Dr. van Dyke Touching Practical Problems of Life.

Rev. Henry van Dyke says of his latest book that it is simply a collection of essays in application; that is, he applies the views of a sane idealist to the practical problems of life. Although he says it "makes no claim to be a defense, or even a statement, of a complete system of philosophy or faith," it is evident that he has such a system of philosophy, or faith rather, for its influence is felt in every subject he presents, breathing a sane, practical and spiritual atmosphere. He is no pessimist, neither would he call himself an optimist, rather a "meliorist," to use George Eliot's term. His is not the optimism that overlooks evil, but he is not discouraged by it, instead being encouraged to more earnest effort.

Dr. van Dyke thinks the world is growing better; better than it used to be. He is certain that there is more justice and more kindness than there used to be, but he is not so sure about self-restraint, which is the third characteristic of real betterment. He does not despair, for "two are stronger than one. The growth of justice and kindness will in the long run prevail over the decline of self-restraint, and the selfish, reckless spirit will be overcome." He believes in democracy, although he sees its perils—"the red peril of the rise of the demagogue, the yellow peril of the dominance of wealth and the black peril of the rule of the boss." His remedy for these ills is education, which will reach the roots, even if it is somewhat slow-growing. As to the danger of American losing her heritage of ideal—American manhood, American government and American glory and influence—he thinks that when Americans realize the price they will be obliged to pay for giving up their ideals of government and influence, to enter into competition with European nations, the first ideal, American manhood, will rise up and restore the other two.

He is not alarmed by the "flood of books," but he insists on discrimination. He gives the elements which enter into good work in literature: "An original impulse—not necessarily a new idea, but a new sense of the value of an idea. A first-hand study of the subject and the material. A patient, joyful, inspiring labor for the perfection of form. A humor aim—to cheer, console, purify or ennoble the life of the people." He attacks the assertion that communism is the teaching of the New Testament, proving that the Bible does not support the theory that private property is unjust and ought to be abolished. In "Christianity and Literature," "The Church in the City," as well as in "Property and Theft," he especially shows the application of Christianity to life.

S. WEIR MITCHELL.

The faces of few American writers, perhaps, are better known to the American public than that of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, practicing his profession in Philadelphia and writing in his spare time with all the enthusiasm of 20—and yet he will be 76 in February.

This is one of the more unfamiliar portraits of this "dean of American novelists," the first chapter of whose latest novel, "A Diplomatic Adventure," appears in the February Century.

"SOCIETY" JOURNALISM.

One would suppose that the experience in a certain libel suit in New York would put an end forever to what is called society journalism, but they will probably have no effect at all. There will always be rich people with hopes of publicity, or fears of it, and willing to give up some of their abundant money for one or the other of these.

It has been shown by the testimony that persons of large means are pretty certain to be "subjects of criticism" of some time or other, and are easily convinced that it would be a good thing to loan money to the proprietor of a "society" paper without security and without effort to obtain repayment. In fact, opulent persons could transform themselves from subjects of criticism into objects of flattery by lending money or subscribing $1,000 or $2,000 to a book, or presenting the perfervid proprietor of the paper with a block of his own stock. "I believe you can get J. E. Addicks if you go right at him. He is rich and ambitious." "I think, if you get at John A. McCall his vanity will fall." "We treated Maloney so nicely that I think he ought to talk." These are interesting extracts from the proprietor's instructions.

Of course, working on a man's vanity is a far more innocent transaction than playing upon his fears, whether he really has something to conceal or merely wishes to keep his name out of print, or avoid invidious allusions. But there has been plenty of evidence that checks have been extracted from fears as well as hopes, and that retreats to lend or invest money have been followed by many unpleasant paragraphs—a mere coincidence of course, no connection between them.

A paper which is obtaining money from people by working on their weakness or their wickedness must study the criminal libel laws very attentively, and the curious thing about this suit is that the paper in question is not the defendant, but a member of its staff has dared to sue another paper for grossly describing the sort of business he is doing.

BROWN'S NEW LIBRARY.

Brown University is to be congratulated upon the fact that it is to have a new library. Although the project is not yet fully assured, Brown spirit has never been lacking to complete such a plan when once started, and this is practical evidence that the present scheme will not fail. Mr. Carnegie's generous gift of $150,000, half the amount needed, with the simple provision that the other half shall be raised by the graduates and friends of the college, is sufficient to spur the latter to enterprise, and there should be no difficulty in securing the comparatively small amount needed to make the new library project certain of accomplishment. A few years ago the graduates and well wishers of the university contributed a round million dollars for the institution, and it is not conceivable that the securing of this very much smaller amount will prove impossible, so that the library may safely be said to be assured.

Brown needs a new library perhaps more than any thing else in the way of equipment just at the present time. It has already a fine building erected for this purpose, but it was outgrown a number of years ago and the college has been put to great straits to provide even storage space for the valuable additions to the library which are constantly being made. When the present structure was built, some 30 years ago, it was thought that it would be ample for the purposes to which it was to be devoted for at least a century, but so rapid has been the growth of the library with the expansion of the college that in less than a third of that period it has been outgrown and a very much larger building is needed.

It was a happy thought of Mr. Carnegie to have this proposed new library made a memorial to John Hay, who was in some respects, if not in all points, the most distinguished alumnus the university has numbered among its graduates. The college esteems highly the memory of its noted son and all connected with the institution are pleased to have his name honored in this connection. It is fitting that his alma mater should do this act to perpetuate his memory, and his name could be more suitably attached to no other college building. A man of distinguished attainments, great learning and broad literary ability, the new Brown library will appropriately preserve the record of such a life and hand down to future generations the memory of his worth and achievements.

The amount which has been fixed upon as needed for the enterprise it is believed will give to the college a building sufficiently large for the requirements of the institution for many years, and at the same time will allow its construction to be of the most approved modern type and its equipment the best and most advanced for the purposes to which it is to be devoted. The aim will be to give to the university a library of which every one connected with it in any way may be proud, and which will serve the uses of the faculty and students in the best possible manner. That the amount needed to supplement the gift of Mr. Carnegie will be quickly secured is not doubted by any loyal son of Brown.

PULPIT SUPPLY AGAIN.

Every few weeks some religious organization takes hold of the problem of pulpit supply, but Dr. Faunce of Brown University and Dr. Hall of Union Seminary, who discussed the subject recently before the Philadelphia Presbyterian Social Union, were not more successful than others have been in accounting for the decline.

In the first place, the facts are not undisputed. There are fewer theological students, but that is the only definite fact agreed upon. Both these distinguished educators laid a good deal of stress upon the meagre compensation of ministers. They do not receive nearly so much pay as they ought, but if the supply is short why does not the pay increase? Is it not a fact that every denomination which does not control the pulpit supply through its own official authorities has hundreds of ministers who are seeking pulpits and not securing them? These are not men of first-class ability, but few men in any walk in life belong to that class.

Many of the unemployed ministers are men of as good character, ability and appearance as many pastors. It is as easy for the churches to obtain ministers that they are under no pressure to offer larger salaries, and the congregations are fussy to the last degree of absurdity in their judgment of candidates. Many of the criticisms passed upon ministers who are "candidating" are simply disgusting. The process itself is mortifying, not to say degrading, and has something to do with the unwillingness of young men to enter the ministry.

The small salary has very little to do with it. There were never more men and women in the world ready to devote themselves to religion, philanthropy and science without regard to material returns. The "higher criticism" has a good deal to do with the short supply of ministers, but not at all in the way commonly represented. It isn't turning young men from religion, but it is creating in them a demand for freedom of belief, present and prospective, which the ecclesiastical authorities and the greater part of the congregations regard with hostility.

DEFEAT OF THE INSURGENTS.

The House, in spite of the "insurgents," has decided to pass the joint statehood bill, making one state out of Arizona and Mexico and another out of Indian Territory and Oklahoma, and there will be no opportunity to amend the bill. The defeat of the insurgent Republicans was decisive. With the full Democratic vote they still lacked nearly 30 of a majority and Speaker Cannon and the administration have again forced their plans against a very considerable revolt. Up to the last minute the "insurgents" declared that they could muster 54 votes against the adoption of the rule, but the "stalwarts" awaited the result with confidence, knowing that when party lines were drawn the victory would go to the organization, and the bolters mustered eleven less than they had claimed.

With an endowment and building fund of $8,000,000, from the estate of the late Marshall Field, the Field Columbian Museum in Chicago is reasonably sure of a continued existence under fairly comfortable conditions for years to come, possibly forever, and Chicago is assured one of the best equipped museums in this country.

The figures of the last state census of Massachusetts show that the native-born people have increased 349,971 and the foreign-born 153,826 in the last ten years. Curiously enough, the percentage gain in foreign-born has been greatest in the towns, next greatest in the cities, and lowest in Boston.

At a banquet of the Confederate Veterans of New York this week General Frederick Dent Grant responded to the toast "Robert E. Lee," talking interestingly of his father's old foe and appreciatingly of the latter's ability. The war is really over.

Senator Lodge's announcement that President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term and would not accept a nomination may be regarded as authoritative. It also agrees with everything the President himself has said on the subject.

Mayor McClellan of New York and Charles F. Murphy have apparently come to the parting of the ways and the mayor will go on his own course, regardless of the present head of Tammany.

The foreman of a composing room in a Dublin newspaper office has been elected lord mayor of that city. He ought to have a goodly measure of executive ability.

The Republicans of the New York legislature have decided to repeal the mortgage tax law.

TO IMPROVE THE SPECIAL DELIVERY SYSTEM.

All persons who have wanted to send a "hurry letter" at a time when they couldn't get a special delivery stamp will be interested in a bill which has been introduced in the House providing that 12 cents' worth of stamps of any denomination affixed to a letter or to any package requiring but two cents for transmission in the usual way shall insure its delivery by special messenger, provided the words "special delivery" are written on the envelope. The present method seems, and really is, simple, and is a great convenience; but the proposed method will be simpler and even more convenient. As a matter of fact, many people now believe that 12 cents' worth of stamps is all that is required to command the special service. The stamps are cancelled and the letters follow the usual course of the two-cent missive, so that the Postoffice Department catches the trustful but misinformed senders both coming and going. Even if the measure under consideration becomes a law, careless correspondents will be caught by the provision requiring that the words "special delivery" appear on the envelope. But for the majority of users of the mails the proposed method would save annoyance and delay and it would undoubtedly considerably increase the use of the special delivery service.

One feature of this service which cannot be changed by legislation is often ignored by people who send special delivery letters to business offices. It sometimes causes inconvenience, but the remedy is wholly with the sender. Such a letter addressed to a person in a New York business office and mailed in Hartford in the evening will very likely be taken to the office of the man addressed before that office is open the next morning. One effort having been made to deliver it by special messenger, the letter becomes a part of the ordinary letter mail and is taken back to the postoffice or sub-station to be taken out by the regular carrier. In the meantime, the carrier will very likely have started on his first round, so that the letter which with a two-cent stamp would have reached its destination in the first delivery is delayed until the second delivery. This is an example of much waste. However, the basic makes special delivery system has done much to facilitate communication and every improvement will be welcome.

WHEN IT WAS REALLY WARM IN JANUARY.

[Taunton Gazette.]

The hot wave in which Taunton and the rest of the east have been sweltering is nothing. It is a spell of arctic weather, according to Abijah G. Boomer of Pottersville, a section of Somerset. Mr. Boomer is a truthful man and is not addicted to drink. Hence his story must be credited.

Mr. Boomer recalls that on the twenty-seventh day of January, 1841, the heat was so intense that no less than 12 men who now occupy grass grown graves were sun struck. They were struck down while attending a lawn party held by King Philip Lodge of the Sons of Jonadab. They were buried in Greenwood cemetery in Somerset. But the most extraordinary thing about the weather was the change which came about in 24 hours, for several relatives of the deceased were frozen to death while attending the obsequies.

Nathaniel R. Comstock of Tiverton corroborates Mr. Boomer and relates a strange occurrence. He recalls, he says, that a party of men were driving ox sleds between Colonys Point at the fish works and Nannaquaket, when the ice and snow, which had been subjected to the terrific rays of the sun for several hours, melted and let down the men and the ox sleds into the sea and they were never see or heard from again.

A Taunton storekeeper declares that a June bug entered his store recently and flew gaily about as if it were midsummer and there are all sorts of stories about in regard to lightning bugs, butterflies and mosquitoes.

NEED OF A REVENUE CUTTER.

[Westerly Sun.]

The marine district of this region from Watch Hill to the west of New London, including Fisher's Island and many of the other small islands, is sadly in need of a revenue cutter, the Dexter, the boat assigned here a few weeks ago, being practically unfit for the service required. Since the assigning of the Dexter to this region the cutter has had practically but little duty to perform and during the past six weeks she has been hauled out for repairs to her hull in the hope of stopping her from leaking. This attempt has been unsuccessful and after being placed in the water it has been found that the vessel still continues to leak. So after six weeks of labor it has been impossible to stop the leak. A survey has been held, a report of which has not been made public, and filed with the department at Washington.

Had the weather been of the kind that usually prevails at this season of year, requiring continued patrol duty by a cutter, the Dexter would undoubtedly have been unfit for this service, for it is stated upon good authority that the Dexter is totally unfit for duty.

What is needed is a cutter of the Walter Gresham or Algonquin class. Both of these cutters were assigned here prior to the Dexter's coming, and did fine service, being capable of performing the duties required. As the matter of a cutter now stands, the region might as well be without a cutter as to have one here that is not in condition for service as is the case with the Dexter.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Proposition to Limit This Year's Road Bonds to $200,000.

Need of Appropriation for Institute for the Deaf—New Masonic Building at Pawtuxet.

At the hearing before the house finance committee yesterday the members of the State Board of Public Roads expressed the idea that of the proposed $600,000 bond issue the board's plans for the year 1906 can be served by limiting the amount for this year to $200,000. General Treasurer Read and Colonel Bliss of the finance committee were of the opinion that the purposes of the bond issue really require that some such limitation be placed upon the issue and in this view both the members of the board and the legislative financiers were unanimous. Mr. Read recommended that the proposed bill be so changed that he be required to sell at least only $200,000 of the bonds before January, 1907, rather than requiring the sale of all the $600,000 bonds before that date. The question being brought up during the general discussion on the proposed bill, it was stated by Colonel Bliss and other members of the finance committee and agreed to by Senator Edwards of the Board of Public Roads that the proposed expenditure may be used only for construction, and that maintenance must be paid for by a general appropriation. An amendment was therefore proposed to the bill, making maintenance a part of the work contemplated in the expenditures, and it was decided to ascertain from the attorney general if such an amendment would be constitutional.

Mayor Dyer of Providence, accompanied Miss Richards, principal of the Rhode Island Institute for the Deaf, before the house committee on finance yesterday previous to the session of the Assembly, and urged the favorable consideration by the committee of a resolution calling for an appropriation of $12,000 for the practical reconstruction of the school building occupied by the institute on Hope street. Plans for the proposed changes to be made in the building's exterior were submitted and the changes were explained, as well as the immediate need. At the present time, it was stated, the institute for the Deaf is confined in its school rooms to the building which stood on the land when the state purchased it, years ago. The building stands back of the big brick and stone dormitory, on the front of the lot, and has not been changed from its original form materially in the 14 or 15 years in which it has been used for school purposes. The rooms are small and old-fashioned, ventilation is lacking, except by the opening of windows, and the heating appliance is very poor. The plan is to remove all the partitions in the interior of the two floors, which are included in the building, and tear down the chimneys and closets and lay new floors. An addition is to be built on the north and south sides of the building, which will give opportunity for the laying out of four large schoolrooms on each floor. The additions are to be the full depth of the house from east to west. In addition to the reconstruction of the interior arrangement of the rooms, the laying of new floors and stairs and blackboards, a new heating plant is planned with a system of adequate ventilation also.

Preliminary plans for a new building for Harmony Lodge, No. 9, A. F. and A. M., of Pawtuxet, have been approved by the building committee and work on the structure, which is to be erected on the old stillhouse lot on Ocean street, opposite the end of Commercial street, Pawtuxet, on the bluff overlooking Stillhouse Cove and the Rhode Island Yacht Club house, will be begun in March. The architect is E. T. Banning of Providence, a member of the lodge. The building will overlook a wide stretch of the bay above Sabin's Point, and will have the finest situation of any of the buildings along the shore front in that section of Pawtuxet. Tradition gives the site of the new lodge building as the site of the old stillhouse from which Stillhouse Cove takes its name. There is a well on the property, just inside the line of the lodge lot, which is said to be the well from which the water for the stillhouse was obtained. When the Gaspee had been burned the men from that vessel, with their commander, Lieutenant Duddingston, were brought to Pawtuxet and landed there at Stillhouse Cove. Local traditions in the old village are to the effect that Lieutenant Duddingston was taken to the stillhouse and kept there until his wounds were dressed, and he was removed to Providence, and that the men of the vessel were, some of them at least, confined in the cellar of a house on what is now locally known as "Fish Hill," on the banks of Pawtuxet Cove, on the Warwick side of the village.

The inquiry into the collision between steamers Trojan of the Boston & Philadelphia line and the Nanouchee of the Ocean line, in Vineyard Sound in the fog Sunday, is to be made by the United States Board of Steamboat Inspectors at Providence. Although both vessels were bound for Boston, the scene of the collision is within the jurisdiction of the Providence or Rhode Island district. From all that has been learned in a general way the officials express the opinion that the collision which resulted in the loss of the Trojan was unavoidable, and that no one on either vessel was to blame. It was announced yesterday that the inquiry will be held in Providence before Captain Wilcox, United States local inspector of steam vessels. The date has not yet been set, but it is understood that it will be in the near future.

The purchase of the Jones estate block, which extends from Westminster street to Exchange place, Providence, by Colonel Samuel P. Colt is causing considerable speculation as to whether it is to be used for a newspaper building or as an annex to the Industrial Trust Company, whose building is in the same square. The taxed valuation exceeds $145,000, and considerable more than that price was paid. The building is of brick and has a three-story frontage on Westminster street, the ground floor comprising a vacant store and Tillinghast's restaurant. On the Exchange place side the building is four stories high and the ground floor is occupied by the main office of the Textile Finished Machinery Company. Colonel Colt is at present in New York, and it is said that he has not decided as to the disposition of the property.

Judge Brown, in the superior court, has given a decision in the Central Falls mandamus case, holding that it was the duty of the common council of that city to call an election for a successor to Charles H. Vaslett, a councilman from the First ward, who resigned.

AN OLD HORSES' HOME.

[New York Mail.]

One of the good ideas that have come out of Boston is represented in an institution called Red Acre Farm, at Stow, Mass. It is a charitable refuge for horses—a sort of Old Soldiers' Home for brave and worthy four-footed creatures who have served man long and faithfully and laboriously. And why not a charitable home for horses? Do men often deserve any better of one another than any old horse, worn out with service, has deserved of our race? Has every human derelict who is picked up by the charitable hand of the community, rescued and given a chance to shelter his old timbers in the snug harbor of an asylum as good a title to rest for a year or two as the average old horse? We doubt it. This Boston institution largely owes its foundation to the efforts of a literary man, Mr. Henry C. Merwin, who has all his life been a profound student and ardent lover of the horse. He had seen many a faithful beast, from whom men had had nothing but patient and kindly service, turned out in his last year to die a lingering death by starvation, cold and exposure. Many another he had seen fall dead in the shafts, having been passed on from one hard master to another, and whipped into yielding the last pound of strength that was in him. Against this base ingratitude of man Mr. Merwin's heart revolted, and he founded Red Acre Farm.

Here all old, worn-out and disabled horses are freely received and cared for. According to their condition they are kept or humanely killed, or let out for light work to men of known humanity, and where they can be frequently inspected by agents of the farm. To Red Acre Farm the Boston fire department sends all its worn-out horses. Many horses that are being passed on from wretchedness to wretchedness are now and again bought for a small sum by merciful men and sent to Red Acre. There, in grassy paddocks or from comfortable box stalls, these faithful soldiers of war and peace look their gratitude from kindly and contented eyes, until the moment of euthanasia arrives for them. Every city in the land ought to have its Red Acre Farm. What lover of horses will begin an agitation to make the movement national?

DEATH OF JOHN H. GREENE.

A Well Known Business Man, for Many Years Superintendent of the Ice Companies.

Mr. John Herman Greene, one of Newport's oldest and best known citizens, died at his residence on Bath road this morning. He was out as late as last Sunday and seemed to be in his accustomed health. For about a year he has been a sufferer from heart weakness.

The deceased was a son of James A. and Elizabeth Orman Greene and was born in this city August 19, 1828. He was a carpenter by trade, and for years was a master builder, managing a planing and saw mill on Thames street. This venture was started about 1858, and he built many well known summer residences. After retiring from the business of building contractor he purchased from the late August Belmont the farm in Middletown now owned by Mr. William H. Mayer, which he extensively improved.

After a few years spent in farming, he resumed his residence in this city and in 1865 or 1866 engaged in the ice business. In 1870 the Newport Ice Company was formed, and he was its superintendent until 1885, when the Arctic Ice Company was organized, Mr. Greene being its superintendent and manager to the day of his death.

In the fifties Mr. Greene was an ardent and popular fireman, and in 1866-7 was foreman of hand engine company No 1. He represented the Fourth ward in the Common Council from 1868 to 1873 and again in 1875. He leaves a widow, two sons, Mr. James A. Greene and Mr. John H. Greene, Jr., and three daughters—Miss Susan Greene, Miss Augusta Greene and Miss Sarah Greene.

Mr. Greene was the principal figure at the annual gathering of the ice crop for many years past, being considerate of the comfort and welfare of his employes, scores being at times engaged, night and day, at great exposure. He provided at frequent intervals hot coffee and other drinks, chowder, etc., and personally saw that the men were well and promptly served. He always kept a supply of dry stockings and boots, for those whose work was the most onerous.

The deceased was a typical old Newport resident, fond of his native city, fully acquainted with its history, traditions and folk lore, and was always ready to give others the benefit of his valuable personal reminiscences.

A BEAUTIFUL SUNSET—LONGER DAYS.

Last evening the sky was clear, and for the first time in a number of days Newporters had an opportunity to see how much the day had lengthened, as it was not necessary to light up for nearly an hour later than was the rule not long since. The western sky presented a pretty picture at sunset. In the southwest the red occupied the entire corner, above this was a dreary covering of grey, and stretching in a long thin line toward the north was a sort of breakwater of thin black clouds, which stood out effectively from the clear blue of the upper sky.

Today is 37 minutes longer than the shortest day, December 21. The sun rises 5 minutes earlier and sets 32 minutes later, so that practically all the increase comes in the afternoon, when more people appreciate it.

SCARLET FEVER AT THE CITY HOSPITAL.

Another scarlet fever patient was admitted to the City Hospital on Broadway this morning, making a dozen. This patient was an infant, taken to the institution by its father.

The children confined there are well supplied with toys and books and appear to be quite contented, as their faces appear at the window, until some of their friends appear outside, when the nurses have a hustle to quiet the little ones, whose attention has been attracted to home and parents. Recently a little boy nearly escaped the vigilance of the nurses when his mother came, and was about to leave the institution when captured. Of course parents like to go and see their little ones, yet it is really a hardship for the patients, for they are not sick enough to be confined to bed and it is difficult for them to see why they cannot go home "when their friends come for them."

IT IS COLDER.

The weather today feels as though the weather man knew something about what was going to happen. That fall of 25 degrees has come. Last night the northwest wind got in its work and the temperature steadily dropped to 28. During the night it took a further tumble to 20, which seems to have been low-water mark. The morning was clear and somewhat chilly, with the wind from the northeast, with a touch of winter in its breath. As the day advanced the mercury rose to about 30.

DEATH OF MRS. CHARLES B. BOWLER.

Another of Newport's old residents passed away this morning, when Mrs. Mary Jane Stanhope, widow of Charles B. Bowler, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Maurice Z. Lester, on Clinton avenue, on her eighty-fourth birthday. Mrs. Bowler had been in her usual good health yesterday, ate her supper as usual and seemed perfectly well when she retired. She was taken ill during the night, and died in a very short time. She reached her eighty-fourth year, but did not live to celebrate the event.

Mrs. Bowler was a sister of Mr. George Stanhope and Mrs. George M. Fiedler of this city, and Mr. Alfred Stanhope and Mrs. Gray of Massachusetts. She leaves one son, Mr. Thomas S. Bowler, and two daughters, Mrs. Lester and Mrs. S. H. Oxx, and a number of grandchildren.

THE BADNELLY—SCHREIER WEDDING.

According to the Fall River papers there was a Newport romance in that city yesterday noon, when Miss Edith Schreier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Schreier, and Mr. Joseph Badnelly, both of this city, were united in marriage by City Clerk A. B. Brayton in his office in the city hall. It appeared from what the young people told Mr. Brayton that they had taken out the license last September. The license showed this, but the ceremony was deferred. They finally decided to get married, and yesterday went to Fall River, and after City Clerk Brayton had asked many questions, which were answered frankly, he finally became satisfied that everything was all right and performed the ceremony. This could not be done in Rhode Island, where it takes a regularly registered minister or a justice of the supreme court to tie the marriage knot. After the civil ceremony in Fall River the young couple came to this city and had a religious marriage, according to the rites of the Jewish faith, by Rabbi Kaplan. The ceremony took place at the home of the rabbi on Gibbs avenue, in the presence of a few of the intimate friends of the couple.

SCHOOL AND BIRTH CENSUS.

Canvass of the Lower Section of the City Complete—Tabulation by Card Index System.

Mr. Edward E. Taylor, Jr., has finished his part of the census work of school children and births, in the lower section of the city, and has made his returns. There are two enumerators up town, one for the schools and one for births, and the combination probably interferes with the work of both. Besides, Mr. H. M. Sherman who is taking the school census, was sick at the start, and both are new men. Mr. Taylor is a veteran of one year, who learned how he was fooled last year and was not apparently fooled this year, for he has the numbers which the school attendance shows must be in the section.

Superintendent Lull has prepared a card index system for the school census, which the enumerators fill out at home, giving all the children in one family on one card, making it much more convenient for the use of the department. As the names are filled in at leisure at home they are more carefully written than they could be in a house-to-house canvass. The card contains all the information—the name of parent or guardian, the ward, street and number, names of the children, age, sex, the school they attend and the time—all in a compact space. Some families have such an abundance of school material that the seven spaces on the card are not sufficient, but these are few.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Mrs. A. A. Brown of Middletown is guest of her sister, Mrs. T. G. Carr.

Mr. Charles Tucker of Point Judith is in town, visiting relatives.

Mr. J. C. Terry of Fall River is to build the extension to the Ferry Company's wharf.

Mrs. E. Hazard of Point Judith is guest of Mrs. E. N. Tefft on Cole street.

The firemen are arranging for a progressive whist social next week.

The large four-masted barge Indiana of New York is anchored in the East harbor.

Rev. C. D. Burrows will leave next week on his annual vacation. Captain G. H. Carr, lay reader, will officiate during the pastor's absence.

Mr. D. T. Briggs was able to visit Newport today for the first time since his recent illness.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. James Stillman has sailed for Europe.

—Mr. Martin Leeson has returned from a visit to Philadelphia.

—A year ago today Newport had its severest snowstorm of the winter—a regular blizzard.

—The Newport Artillery Company had the third in its series of winter socials at the armory last night.

—One hundred and eighty wire mattress cots for Fort Adams have been received for the soldiers. They are good-sized, substantial-looking beds.

—Submarine boat Shark, which has been under repairs at the Brooklyn navy yard for some months, went out from that yard yesterday for tests in New York bay.

—United States Hotel arrivals include T. W. Baker of New York, I. J. Champlin of New London, A. Shea of Boston and six members of Blanche Walsh company.

—J. B. Parsonage has sold for James J. Dugan his property situated on Ann and Gidley streets, with the large stables on Gidley street and sheds, to Joshua B. Bachelier.

—A number of members of Newport Aerie of Eagles went to Bristol last night in a special car, to attend a smoker by Bristol Aerie. They returned this morning by special car.

—The Chinese new year began at midnight yesterday and the local Chinese are joining their brethren elsewhere in celebrating the event. The festivities may extend over two weeks before they are complete.

—Teamsters and Helpers' Union No. 163 gave a social in Odd Fellows' hall last night. There was a good-sized attendance of young dancing people, who had a good time to the music of the H. K. Howard orchestra.

—Twenty-three years ago today, January 25, 1883, the John G. Weaver cottage on Bellevue avenue was nearly destroyed by fire, caused by the incendiary act of Kate Judd, who was later to state prison for her crime.

—Mr. Ashkins of Weymouth, Mass., the Blanche Walsh company, and N. D. Harding H. Fishler of Providence and C. A. Lewis of Boston are registered at the Perry House.

—According to reports received from the Fore River works, battleship New Jersey, sister ship to the Rhode Island, is expected to leave the yard February 15 and may begin her trial trip February 22, if things work as they now promise.

—The St. Andrew's Society will provide an excellent entertainment for its members and friends, in observance of the anniversary of "Bobby" Burns's birthday. Those who in the past have attended any of the society's Burns celebrations know what is in store.

—Mr. Thomas B. Congdon has resigned as clerk of the Common Council and of the various City Council committees, and City Clerk Stevens has appointed Mr. Herbert A. Kaull clerk of the several committees except the finance, which makes his own nomination.

—An insurance inspector was in town today, looking over Thames street risks, and as usual remarked about the wooden buildings being dangerous risks. Experience has shown that they cause smaller losses than the so-called fireproof buildings in the larger cities.

—The funeral of Benjamin B. Waldron took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence on Broadway, and was attended by many friends and old-time associates. Rev. C. A. Stenhouse of the First Methodist Episcopal Church officiated, and the interment was in the Island Cemetery.

—Mrs. Harold Brown of the School Committee visited the Rogers High School at luncheon time today and seemed pleased at the manner in which the work was carried out. There was a good attendance of scholars, and a good attendance of schools, and the bill of fare seemed a good one, being as follows: Bouillon 5 cents, cocoa 5, milk 3, baked beans and roll 5, brown bread and butter 3, three doughnuts 3, apple 3 (2 for 5), orange 3, banana 2 (3 for 5).

—The All New England basket ball team, with which Waters is traveling at present, includes McMahon, White and Daley of Fall River; Waters of this city, Phelan of Nashua, N. H., and substitutes from Cambridge and New Haven. The tour will include New Haven, New Hampshire, Canada, Vermont, New Hampshire, Canada, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Washington and is to continue to February 15. This is the third trip the team has made and will be much longer than any of the others.

THE TOPEKA PICKS UP A LIVE RAFT.

ling distance the vessel put about and headed to the straits. When the Topeka hove in sight the raft was once more manned and again put forth. The survivors told terrible tales of the wreck of the vessel. When they left the ship there were about 90 people on board, most of them clinging to the rigging. Men, women and children were being swept by every sea.

As soon as the men got aboard the Topeka, Dr. B. F. Whilting, assisted by two nurses and members of the crew, hastily administered stimulants and put them to bed. After picking up the raft the steamer went in search of another raft, which the rescued men said had left the ship earlier in the day. The vessel ran fully 25 miles on the other side, looking for the raft, but no sign of it was to be seen. It is the general impression that this raft foundered.

A despatch received by W. F. Bullen of Esquimalt, one of the owners of steamer Salvor, from his brother, H. F. Bullen, on board at Bandfield, says the Valencia broke up yesterday afternoon.

Survivors say that most of the boats were smashed to splinters when they were lowered. Two of the ice boats were capsized shortly after launching. One escaped the breakers and put to sea with about eight or nine persons aboard.

The following is the story of G. Wilets, one of the passengers and one of the men rescued from the raft:

"The ship struck at 12:07 on the morning of Tuesday, January 23. I was on deck at the time smoking a cigar, and was looking at my watch when the crash came. In an instant all was excitement. The command to back her off was given and she went astern at full speed, but it was too late. The water was pouring in like a mill race. The wind swung the vessel's stern to the beach and her head to the waves. This saved many lives, as she was then swept back to the shore and struck once again in such a position that she remained partially above the water and on an even keel.

"Every wave now washed clear over her, and many people who hastily rushed on deck went to their deaths without time to murmur a prayer. The order was given to get out the boats. Two of them on the weather side were launched, and were smashed like egg shells as soon as they struck the water. Then came the attempt to get out the lee boats. Purser O'Farrell took charge. Four women and a number of men went into the boat. I do not know how many, but she was practically full. Just as they were lowering the other, the davits broke, and the stern of the boat fell to the water while the bow hung in the air. Every one fell into the sea and was swept away in an instant. I caught a glimpse of agonized faces as they were washed by me. It was awful.

"The waves dashing over the ship began breaking her up. They swept the deck loose and every swell lifted it. We clung to the rigging and deck house. Then an attempt was made to get a line ashore. A fireman named Cigales agreed to swim ashore. He was in the water fully half an hour but was unable to make the beach. The ship struck in a bad spot. She was directly at the foot of a precipitous bluff that comes sheer to the water's edge. One man was swept ashore and succeeded in landing on a small rock. We shot a line to him and he then tried to climb the cliff, but he fell and was killed before our eyes.

"A lame officer from the Concord, accompanied by his two sisters, was among those in the rigging. By Wednesday morning the ship was going rapidly to pieces. Every swell carried away a portion of the ship and the decks rose and fell with every breaker, and it was impossible to stay on deck without clinging to a support. The ship was sunk to about the level of the hurricane deck.

"In the morning another calamity occurred. About 15 or 20 persons, among them one or two women, had taken refuge in the foretop mast. They appeared to be in the safest place, as it was removed from the waves. Suddenly and without warning the mast tottered and there came a shriek from those on it, and the next moment it fell with a crash, carrying its load of human freight to a terrible death. I do not think there was a single one saved. Their bodies were washed from the ship and we could see them dashed against the rocks.

"To add to our misery, the last of our food was washed away. We had no water to drink save the bitter cold sleet. The wind and rain combined with the sea soon number us. Every little while one of those in the rigging would lose their hold and be swept away to the sharp rocks.

"When we saw the Queen in the morning we thanked God for saving us, but when she, in company with the tug, sheered off and sailed away she was followed by nothing but curses. I suppose it was too dangerous for them to attempt to save us. When the Topeka finally hove in sight we determined to make an effort to reach her in the raft life. Few of the men cared to make the attempt, as it appeared to be certain death to even try to cross the breakers. But some of us were willing and we started. With only a pair of oars the struggle against the wind and sea was almost too much for us.

"Part of the time we were under water and were almost drowned. We held one man upright in the centre of the raft and had him wave a shirt on a pole. The waving of the shirt on the raft reminds me that, when the Queen was first sighted the women in the rigging even removed portions of their clothing to wave a signal for help from their positions in the rigging.

"When we left the ship on the raft we tried to get some of the remaining women to go, but they refused. No help can now reach them before morning, and the ship will have then gone to pieces. She was breaking up when we left her. If the two boats which we saw got away and put to sea are picked up they and ourselves will be the only ones saved.

"Captain Johnson lost his bearings and ran the ship ashore. It was a dark and stormy night, and nothing could be seen. After striking Captain Johnson proved himself a hero."

Second Mate Peterson, who was in charge of the raft, sustained severe injuries. He substantiated the story, as did every one of the men rescued.

The Topeka will lay in the strait until daylight, and then proceed to the scene of the wreck to render whatever aid is possible.

ASHORE ON PEAKED HILL BAR.

Barge Fanny Broke Away from Her Tow and Grounded.

HIGHLAND LIGHT, Mass., Jan. 25.—A whaleback barge was sighted ashore on Peaked Hill bar early today. Her name could not be made out. From appearances it was believed that her crew was safe, although a northeast gale was blowing and the sea was running high.

The crew evidently dropped anchor after the barge went on the bar to lessen the rolling of their vessel. This forenoon the seas were breaking over her, but she appeared in no immediate danger of going to pieces. It could be seen that the crew were below, none of them daring to venture on deck for fear of being washed overboard. The members of the Peaked Hill life saving crew were on the beach, watching for an opportunity to go to the assistance of the barge, but up to 9 o'clock the weather conditions were such that it was impossible for them to get their boat near the vessel.

The barge was on the very lop of the inner bar, about 100 yards from shore, and at a point midway between the Peaked Hill and High Head life saving stations.

A government steamer of the converted yacht type was sighted this forenoon off Race Point, apparently in some difficulty. She seemed to have no steam up and was trying to get her sails hoisted. She displayed no signals, and it was thought she probably would work inside the point and anchor in a protected position there.

The life savers finally launched their boat, and went out to the barge, which they found to be the Fanny. She had been in tow of tug Murrell, which also was towing barge Emilie, and was bound from Boston to Baltimore. The line parted during the gale last night, and the barge went on the bar. It is supposed that the tug and the other barge reached Hyannis, or possibly Vineyard Haven. There were four men on the Fanny. The sea was running so high, the tide being full, that the life savers decided that it would not be safe for the crew to attempt to leave the barge at that time, and it was decided to wait until the tide had receded somewhat before the effort was made.

LOST VESSEL DURING FOG.

Fishermen Picked Up and Brought to Boston by Fishing Schooner.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Sixteen fishermen of schooner Quonnapowitt, who had been picked up astray last Tuesday on the eastern part of the Georges, arrived here today on fishing schooner Fannie Belle Atwood. They had left their schooner in eight dories Tuesday morning to set trawls and all of them lost their vessel during a thick fog. The dories were picked up one by one by the Atwood. It is believed that Captain Nickerson of the Quonnapowitt will have difficulty in bringing his vessel to port, as only the cook and one other man remained on board.

Four other fishermen who were lost in a fog Sunday off the southeast Georges from schooner Ellen C. Burke fell in with dorymen from the Nathalie J. Nelson and were brought here on the Nelson.

BITING COLD WEATHER.

Thermometer Registered 13 Degrees Above in Portland, Me.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 25.—Biting cold weather today followed the warm atmospheric conditions of the past few days in this state. The thermometer registered 13 degrees above in this city at 8 a. m., while at Eastport it was 4. The inland sections reported much lower. Continued cold tonight was predicted at the local bureau.

ICE BREAKS UP IN MERRIMAC.

Huge Cakes Dashing Over Dam at Pawtucket Falls, Lowell.

LOWELL, Mass., 25.—The ice in the Merrimac river between Nashua and this city has broken up and huge cakes are dashing over the dam at Pawtucket Falls. So far the high water has not affected the mills. The firemen have not yet cut their supply, and are beginning to worry over the prospect.

CAPITALIZATION OF RAILROADS.

Letter From Professor Marks of Philadelphia Read in Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Immediately after the Senate met today Mr. Tillman read a letter from Professor William D. Marks of Philadelphia regarding the over-capitalization of railroad corporations, in which the writer expressed the opinion that more than half of the railroad securities represent no real properties nor actual investments in cash." He analyzed the report of the commissioners of Massachusetts to show that in that state the total capitalization is about $52,000 per mile, while he said the cost of building and equipping railroads in the state does not exceed $25,000 per mile.

STATEHOOD BILL DEBATE.

Absence of Democrats at Yesterday's Session Explained.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—With 20 members in their places, the House at 11 o'clock today took up its special order on statehood. The debate is to run until 3 o'clock, when a vote on the bill will be taken.

As an echo of yesterday's battle Mr. Loyd (Mo.), the Democratic "whip," made an explanation regarding the 13 Democrats who were absent when the vote was taken on the statehood rule. "A report is current," he said, "to the effect that some of the Democrats yesterday got away without voting and did so corruptly." He then proceeded to give the cause of the absence of the members in question. The three reasons, business, politics and sickness, covered all the cases.

Basing his prediction of the great future development of Arizona and New Mexico on the accomplishment of his own state, Mr. Kahn (Calif.) depicted the wrong that was being done in joining those two territories as one state.

Mr. Mondell (Wyo.) followed in the same line.

The debate then shifted to the other side. Mr. Capron (R. I.) began a speech in favor of the bill, and then said he would yield to Mr. Hepburn, if he would recount the experiences of the territories of Maine and Iowa. Mr. Hepburn complied.

THE SENATE QUITE BUSY.

Upper House is Preparing for Two Struggles.

Community of Interest Regarding Philippine Tariff and Statehood Bills.

[Washington correspondence of the News.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Senate is preparing for two struggles. The determination of the leaders in the House to push forward the joint statehood bill indicates that the necessary votes are behind that measure to pass it without any amendments. But in the Senate no such methods can be used, and every possible amendment will be proposed. The other bill with which the Senate must wrestle is the Philippine tariff bill. For some reason these two bills seem to be coupled, mainly because the Republicans who oppose one oppose the other, and there is what might be called a "community of interest" regarding them. In the Senate, however, it looks very much as if the order would be reversed and that the statehood bill would receive consideration before the Philippine bill is reported from the committee.

The men who are in charge of these contested measures are determined and energetic. Senator Beveridge as chairman of territories and Senator Lodge as chairman of the Philippines have already demonstrated that they are not "quitters." They will keep their bills constantly to the front, and, while accommodating every Senator who desires to speak, they will force the fighting as soon as it appears that speeches are being made to consume time and defeat the bills by delay. Lodge has been successful in handling a number of Philippine bills since he was chairman of the committee. Beveridge was successful in defeating the Quay three-state bill in one Congress and unsuccessful in trying to pass the joint statehood bill in the last Congress, losing, however, by one vote.

Rev. H. H. Shields of Arizona was testifying before the House committee on territories and was quite closely examined by Representative Powers of Maine. Warmed up under Powers' prodding, he said:

"Although I have been in the territory 20 years I saw more crime and vice in Portland, Me., during a short visit there than I ever saw in Arizona."

"Well," responded Powers, "I can only repeat what Tom Reed said when Portland was similarly assailed in his presence: 'We have a few of those things to show our visitors.'"

The Senate likes to adjourn from Thursday to Monday every week. There is good reason for this, as it gives Senators an opportunity to catch up with their correspondence and to attend to committee duties. For last week there was a difficulty. The two Senators, Aldrich of Rhode Island and Hale of Maine, who always make the motions to adjourn over Washington's birthday and other Senators disliked to make the motion. Senator Kean, who was engineering the adjournment, declared that such a motion must come from some member of the finance committee or appropriations committee or at least some member old in service. Finally Allison, after a careful explanation of the needs of time for committee work, made the motion and the Senators unanimously agreed to it.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, who is a physician by profession, had something to say about the food we eat and showed that he was not alarmed over the many disclosures about impure food. "I think," he said, "we are running amuck on that matter to a very considerable extent. Human life is being lengthened in place of being shortened decade by decade, notwithstanding all the terrible things that we read of, notwithstanding the microbes and the germs and the bacilli and all that sort of things. Of course, if we believed all that these scientists say, these young fellows in the Department of Agriculture, we would not dare breathe, eat or drink. But I do not believe it, so I am not as much concerned as some."

Representative Houston of Tennessee is serving his first term in the House and in his first attempt to accomplish something met fond of some of the older members. He wanted to introduce a bill to make a park of the Stone River battlefield, and he wanted a map printed with the bill. When Mann of Illinois, Payne of New York and Hull of Iowa got through with him he was bowled over.

"Would it be necessary to have this map made a part of the law if it should be enacted?" asked Mann, adding, "I have seen a great many statutes that I thought might be elucidated by being illustrated, but I never saw one yet that was."

"There have never been maps as a part of the bills before the military committee," declared Hull.

"Send it to the printing committee," said Payne.

"Can't I make a motion to have the map printed?" asked Houston.

"By unanimous consent," replied Speaker Cannon.

"It seems I cannot get that," remarked the crestfallen Tennessean. And there was a round of laughter at his expense.

Arthur W. Dunn.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

At the annual meeting of the Newport County Agricultural Society the following officers were elected: President, Isaac L. Sherman of Middletown; treasurer, Edward R. Anthony; secretary, R. Earl Anthony; vice presidents, first, Warren R. Sherman; second, John M. Eldredge; third, D. Frank Hall; directors, Joshua Coggeshall, Henry Anthony, George Coggeshall, all of Portsmouth. It was voted to ask the societies interested in agriculture in the towns of Tiverton, Little Compton and Jamestown to appoint one member from each town to act with a person appointed from Newport and with the directors in all matters appertaining to the running of the fair.

Dr. and Mrs. Bennett of Adamsville were guests Wednesday and today of Dr. and Mrs. Berton W. Storrs.

Twenty-four took supper at the Ladies' Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held at the home of Mrs. A. G. Manchester Tuesday.

Quite a number of Portsmouth people attended the lecture on "Pure Food" given at the Newport High School Wednesday.

Mr. John F. Manchester is building a commodious stable just northwest of his new house.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jeff are making their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Southwick of Fall River.

Mr. Seth Anthony has leased his farm land, but will retain the house, and with his sisters still reside there.

A long stretch of good cinder sidewalk has been made through Newtown village.

Mrs. Martha Gallands of the Vanderhoef school visited schools Tuesday.

Mr. Charles Gardner, formerly of this town, is very sick at his home on the West road, Middletown.

HANDSHAKE POISONS A MAYOR.

Mayor Brush of Mount Vernon, N. Y., is suffering from blood poisoning as a result of shaking hands with people who come to see him on official business. This is the second attack he has had within one year. A week ago the mayor shook hands with a woman, and in so doing a diamond in a ring which she wore scratched the knuckle of his forefinger. Mayor Brush did not give much attention to the wound at first, but three or four days later his finger started to swell and continued to do so, until the hand of his hand is infested. He says he will shake hands no more.

BILL FOR LICENSING CHAUFFEURS.

If a bill proposed by the Highway Protective Association of New Jersey becomes a law automobilists will not be able to travel faster than 20 miles an hour. The measure provides for a commissioner of motor vehicles and for the appointment of a motor inspector for each county, and for the licensing of chauffeurs. All drivers of automobiles will have to pass an examination, and it will be discretionary with the commissioner of motors to revoke all licenses.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Miss Grosvenor has returned from New York.

—Mrs. Bontelle Noyes has returned from a visit to New York.

—Mr. V. A. Vanduck has returned from a visit to New Haven.

—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney will go to Aiken next month.

—Mrs. N. Devereux Clapp is here to inspect her cottage on Bellevue avenue.

—Mrs. John R. Drexel gave a dinner in New York last night in honor of Lady Susan Townley.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. Watts Sherman will give a dinner at their New York residence tomorrow evening.

—Mr. George A. Hubin, Jr., who occupies a cottage at Jamestown, is spending most of the winter in New York.

A case of scarlet fever has made its appearance at the Training Station, which has been quite free of this disease for the last few months.

The Godfrey Moffitt house on Bellevue has been selected as a parsonage for the united Baptist churches and Rev. Dr. Quick will take possession shortly.

Chief Carpenter's Mate, T. P. Mahoney, who has been at the Naval Training Station for the past 25 years, has been ordered to assume duty at Norfolk, Va.

At the meeting of the New England Chiefs of Police Association in Providence yesterday, Chief of Police James R. Crowley of this city was elected fourth vice president.

Mrs. William G. Rucker has issued invitations for a luncheon for 20 guests in the Hotel St. Regis, New York, February 1. A vaudeville show by Japanese jugglers and dancers will follow.

Executive Officer Donegan of the Training Station has gone to Charleston, S. C., for special duty, the nature of which is not known here. He is expected to return to duty at the Station before he is ordered away permanently.

Admiral Thomas of the Second Naval District has gone to Washington to attend the sessions of the General Board. It is anticipated that next month he will receive orders to the Asiatic station, a command which he has been anxious to secure.

A man of precise habits, who has kept in tabulated form a record of his expenditures for the past 17 years, states that with no increase in hours he has had his gas consumption according to his meter last month 1000 feet more than ever before, and accordingly his bill was greater than for any previous December. He is of the opinion that his meter is running more slowly this month. Some complain that of late the gas has been unusually smoky.

LITTLE POCKET PHYSICIAN.

Hyomei Inhaler that is Guaranteed by James T. Wright to Cure Catarrh.

Thousands who have been cured by Hyomei call the inhaler that comes with every outfit "The little pocket physician," as it is so small that it can be carried in the pocket or purse.

There is really no excuse whatever for anyone having catarrh now that Hyomei is so readily obtainable. If you have any doubts about its value, James T. Wright will let you have a complete outfit with the understanding that unless it cures catarrh, it will not cost you a cent.

A complete Hyomei outfit consists of "the little pocket physician," a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei, and costs only $1, while additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50 cents, making it the most economical, as well as the most reliable treatment for the cure of catarrh.

I desire it known that I am the surviving partner of the dental firm, M. T. Sammons & Co., and now own all privileges and obligations of that firm.

FOR ANOTHER REPRESENTATIVE.

Proposition to be Presented to the General Assembly in Behalf of the Town of Cranston.

[Providence Journal.]

Members of the General Assembly are awaiting with interest a proposition which, it is said, will soon be presented by either Judge Palmer or Colonel Bliss, the Cranston members of the house. The project is to increase the representation of that town from two to three members, this plan involving the subtraction of one of the two present house members from Westerly. As the question is based upon the recent estimates of the population of the state, and is, therefore, governed solely by mathematical calculations, regulated by constitutional provisions, the members anticipate a lively scramble between the representatives of the two places, Cranston and Westerly.

Lincoln, East Providence and Cumberland, which, like Cranston, made a big increase in population, are also said to be interested in securing additional representation. So strenuous has the conflict become that it is understood that the State Census Board, consisting of Governor Utter, Secretary of State Bennett and Commissioner Webb, has been petitioned to verify the census figures.

The controversy has arisen because of the big increase which Cranston has made in population since the last census. According to the recent estimates secured by the department in charge of the census work, and which was also revised by Colonel George H. Webb, Cranston increased 66 per cent, its total being jumped to 17,576. Lincoln and Cumberland increased about 10 per cent, while Westerly increased only about 9 per cent, its population being placed at 8,881. The fact that Westerly increased only that amount and that Cranston's increase was so abnormally large is the basis of the contention made by the town's representatives, Messrs. Bliss and Palmer.

Even leaving out the inmates and employees of the state institutions, it is claimed by them that the town is entitled to an additional representative, and that they intend to push the matter is evidenced by their investigations to substantiate their claims.

At present Cranston, Cumberland, East Providence, Westerly and Lincoln are the only towns having two representatives, and the fact that Westerly, of the above-named places, had the lowest percentage in increase, makes that community the source upon which the Cranston representatives desire to levy. Albert C. Crafts and Everett A. Collin are the present representatives from Westerly, and they are naturally indignant over the idea of losing one vote from that place, and members of the Assembly expect to witness a battle royal when the matter is brought up for the consideration and action of the house.

CAPTAIN BARR TO SAIL THE RAINBOW.

Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt of the New York Yacht Club has engaged Captain Charles Barr to sail his 70-footer, the Rainbow, during the coming season. The Rainbow was not in commission last year, but in 1904 she was persistently raced, and among her windings were the class prize of the Autumn Cups and a special race for the seventies sailed late that fall.

Followers of this class will now recall the splendid showing made by the Rainbow in the run of the New York Yacht Club fleet from Vineyard Haven to Provincetown, August 5, 1902, a distance of 70 nautical miles.

Part of the way the breeze was from 15 to 18 knots, with a heavy head sea, while thunder squalls, accompanied by violent rain, were had off Chatham. Of the three seventies, the Rainbow, the Mineola and the Yankee, in the race the Rainbow made the distance in 7h. 1m. 55s., and was only beaten into the Provincetown anchorage by the big schooners Constellation and Corona.

The Rainbow is in winter quarters at New London. She will be overhauled and fitted out early in the spring.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

GENERAL JOSEPH WHEELER DYING.

Veteran Soldier's Life Hanging by a Thread.

His Strength Being Kept up by Stimulants.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Brigadier General Joseph Wheeler, U. S. A., retired soldier, statesman and author, is dying at the home of his sister in this city. At 8:30 this morning the physicians said that the end could not be long delayed. The members of the family who remain within easy call of the sick chamber refuse to abandon hope, but realize the gravity of the veteran's condition.

Six days ago, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Sterling Smith in Brooklyn, where he has recently lived, General Wheeler contracted a severe cold, which developed into pleurisy and pneumonia. From the first the warrior's age told against him, and when yesterday the disease was found to have affected both lungs it was feared that a fatal termination was inevitable.

Late last night Dr. A. J. McCorkle, the attending physician, said that there is practically no hope of recovery. At midnight a sinking spell caused the family to be summoned to the bedside. There were in addition to Mrs. Smith, Major Joseph Wheeler, Jr., U. S. A., now stationed at West Point, and the four daughters of General Wheeler, Mrs. W. J. Harris, and the Misses Anna Lucille and Carrie Wheeler. The daughters had come on from the South Tuesday and yesterday.

Conscious and with his mind apparently active, the general seemed to know that death was approaching and, too weak to speak, he tried with characteristic fortitude to nod encouragement to his children. Later the general sank into a peaceful slumber, and at the earnest wish of the physicians the members of the family who had been summoned to the bedside returned to their rooms.

Early this morning there was no perceptible change. The patient remained apparently comfortable, but death appeared to be a matter of hours only. Major Wheeler said that the condition of his father is such that the family is prepared for the worse.

Dr. A. J. McCorkle, General Wheeler's physician, called Dr. John Longmore into consultation in General Wheeler's case last night, and the two physicians remained with the patient all night. When Dr. Longmore left the sick man's chamber this morning he said General Wheeler's life was then hanging by a thread. The general was only half-conscious at that time, and it was believed that death might ensue at any moment. Oxygen was administered to the patient this morning for the first time.

Dr. McCorkle said shortly before 10 o'clock:

"General Wheeler has no chance in twenty of recovery. His condition is very low, and his strength is being kept up on stimulants, but nevertheless he has a fighting chance."

General Wheeler was very low and sinking rapidly shortly before 2 p. m. today. His physicians had then abandoned all hope for his recovery.

ACCORDED MILITARY FUNERAL.

Body of Minister Prefontaine Borne to Montreal Cemetery.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—After lying in state at the city hall for 24 hours the body of Raymond Prefontaine, late minister of marine, was borne to its last resting place in Cote Des Nieges cemetery today, with all the pomp and solemnity of a military funeral. The funeral service was conducted by Archbishop Bruchesi, the solemn requiem mass being sung by his grace, assisted by Fathers Chorrier and Bernard. The archbishop pronounced the benediction.

TO BE IMPOSED SATURDAY.

Sentence on Charles L. Tucker for Murder of Miss Page.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 25.—Judge Sherman, of the superior court, announced today that he would impose sentence Saturday morning at 10 o'clock upon Charles L. Tucker, who is under conviction of first degree murder for having killed Mabel Page. The penalty for this crime in Massachusetts is death by electrocution. Former Attorney General Herbert Parker moved for sentence on Tucker about two weeks ago, but sentencing was postponed to give the defendant's counsel opportunity to ask for a new trial, on the ground of newly discovered evidence. Several days ago Judge Sheldon overruled the motion for another trial, chiefly on the ground that the new evidence was largely hearsay, and that it would not, in his opinion, have changed the verdict of the jury had it been presented at the trial.

Tucker's counsel decided today that no exceptions will be taken to the ruling of Judge Sherman in refusing a new trial for Tucker, and it is probable that there will be no objection by the defense in sentencing Tucker Saturday.

"If Mrs. Meisaacs is telling the truth and knows what she is talking about," said James H. Vahey, of counsel for Tucker, today, "her action in turning over what she knows to the Brooklyn police will aid Tucker. I do not believe Tucker knows the man, for had he ever met him he surely would have told us of him when we were looking for the J. L. Morton at the time of the trial."

Mr. Vahey has instructed the New York correspondent of his firm to look into the woman's story.

MRS. MISAACS DENIES STORY.

Did Not Say Her Husband Was Implicated in Page Murder.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Detective Whitney of Boston, after questioning Mrs. John A. Maelsaacs in regard to the alleged story which she told the Brooklyn police yesterday, that her husband was implicated in the Mabel Page murder, announced that the woman denied to him that she made any such allegations. Mrs. Maelsaacs was, however, held by the Brooklyn police, pending a further investigation.

RECEIVED BY SHONTS.

Majority Report of Board of Consulting Engineers of Canal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The majority report of the board of consulting engineers of the Isthmian canal commission, which was recently signed at Brussels by the foreign members and forwarded to Washington by General Davis, has been received by Chairman Shonts of the commission. This, with the minority report, will shortly be placed in the hands of Secretary Taft for transmission to the President and by the President to Congress. It is said the changes which General Davis cabled had been made in the majority report do not materially affect the original draft.

STEPHEN DECATUR IS DISMISSED.

In Conformity With Court-Martial Sentence.

Great-Grandson of Naval Hero to Leave Academy.

SEVERAL WITNESSES EXAMINED.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 25.—The trial of Midshipman Richard R. Mann was continued today. Several additional witnesses for the defense were examined. Charges have been filed against Ned Leroy Chaplin, a first-class man from Pasadena, Cal., and George H. Melvin of Geneseo, Ill., of the third class.

At the opening of the court today it was announced that Midshipman Geisenger must answer as to what midshipman had ordered Weyler under the table. He said that Midshipman Ned L. Chaplin had given the order. The witness said that Mann had not put Weyler under the table while the witness was present.

WELCOMED BY GOVERNOR.

National Shoe Wholesale Dealers to Discuss Increased Prices.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Governor Guild welcomed the delegates of the National Shoe Wholesalers' Association of the United States, who assembled at Hotel Somerset today in annual convention. The special subject of the meeting was that of whether the material advances in leather and consequent necessary advances in shoes are to be permanent, or whether like several similar advances in the past 20 years they are likely only to be temporary. The convention was attended by many manufacturers who were present yesterday at a special convention of New England shoe manufacturers, called to consider the general question of raising the price of shoes, and at which it was unanimously agreed that the prices must be advanced to keep pace with the rapidly increasing cost of leather with the alternative that the corresponding amount must be taken out of the value of the shoes sold at the old prices.

Among those were George E. Keith, a shoe manufacturer of Brockton, and E. D. Bliss, a prominent manufacturer of this city. In addition to Messrs. Keith and Bliss, the speakers included Augustus Hemly of New York, John W. Craddock of Lynchburg, Va., and E. E. Rand of St. Louis, Mo.

WEAVERS WAGES INCREASED.

Notices Posted at Plant of Peacedale Woolen Mill.

PEACEDALE, Jan. 25.—Notices to the effect that an increase of wages would go into effect at the plant of the Peacedale Manufacturing Company February 1 were posted at the factory here today. The wage increase affects only the weavers in the plant. It is believed to be such that it will approximate the wages paid other workmen of the same sort in other woolen mills in this State. The company constitutes the principal industry of the village, and about 200 are employed, about 75 of whom are weavers.

How's Your Hair?

Wm. H. Cotton Announces That He Has at Last Secured a Cure for Hair Troubles.

We beg to announce to the people of Newport that we have secured the agency for one of the greatest discoveries of recent years. We refer to the prescription of Sir Erasmus Wilson, M. D., England's most successful specialist in diseases of the scalp, who was knighted for his many successes in the treatment of skin and scalp. Upon the death of Dr. Wilson this prescription was secured by American chemists and is now offered to the public under the name of Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair. This preparation will grow hair on bald heads even after all else fails. Unlike other hair preparations it is not sticky or greasy, but gives a live and glossy appearance to the hair. Miss Cornelia Stevens, 6 Smith Ave., Boston, Mass., says: "Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair grew a magnificent head of hair for me after I was told that I was becoming hopelessly bald. My hair now reaches nearly to my waist and is heavy and glossy. I cannot too highly recommend it." If you are growing bald, troubled with eruptions, dandruff scales or any scalp troubles try Dr. Wilson's Life to the Hair. Albert Chemical Co., Boston, Mass., proprietors. Sold by Wm. H. Cotton, 226 Thames street. Price, 50 cents.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. Wall Street—The stock market opened irregular, with Amalgamated Copper at 110 ex-dividend, American Locomotive 52¾, American Smelting 170¾, Anaconda 25⅞, Atchison 87½, Baltimore & Ohio 115½, Brooklyn Transit 70, Canadian 174⅞, Erie 34⅞, Louisville 151½, Missouri Pacific 101⅝, New York Central 142⅝, Norfolk & Western 56⅞, Northern Pacific 206⅞, Pennsylvania 134⅝, Reading 156, Rock Island 24⅞, Sugar 131½, St. Paul 180¼, Southern Railway 31, Southern Pacific 76⅝, Union Pacific 137¾ to 137⅝, United States Steel preferred 111⅞, Wabash preferred 17¾.

10—The tone of the opening stock market was feverish and irregular. There were wide movements in some of the stocks which were under pressure at the closing last night, but free selling was in evidence in other quarters at the first. Anaconda responded 4, St. Paul 1¾, Colorado Fuel, Lead and Reading about a point and Texas & Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, Sugar and the best American large fractions. The first sales of Union Pacific were 2,000 shares at 137¾ and 137½, compared with 137 last night. Pressed Steel Car preferred, Colorado & Southern and the first preferred were down ¾.

The resistance was shown to the pressure and recoveries were made from declines. Stocks which opened higher extended their gains. Price offerings came out at the advance and there were abrupt reactions. St. Paul rose an extreme 2 points and Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper 1¾. The reaction wiped out the gains and carried Reading 2 points below last night and several other stocks a point. Prices steadied before 11 o'clock.

Noon—Money on call steady, at 1 per cent; prime mercantile paper 5 to 5½ per cent. Prices hardened slowly and the trading became very dull. A few dormant stocks made wide changes. American Express rose 9½, United States Express 3, American Agricultural Chemical preferred 11, Brooklyn Transit 2, Hide and Leather preferred 5¾, Colorado Fuel 2¾, American Steel declined 2¾ and Federal Mining 5. Buying showed more animation at noon. Bonds were steady.

PURE FOOD MEETING.

Miss Lakey Speaks on Adulteration and the Remedy Under Auspices of Current Topics Club.

The hall of the new Rogers High School was well filled yesterday afternoon, when a pure food meeting was held under the auspices of the Current Topics Club, several other organizations in the city being invited to attend. Mrs. Frank M. Greenlaw, president of the Current Topics Club, presided, and in opening read from a paper on "Food Adulteration in Its Relation to Public Health," furnished by Dr. E. H. Jenkins, Ph. D., director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at New Haven, who spoke of the Heyburn pure food bill now before the Senate as protecting the interstate transmission of adulterated goods. States have to make their own regulations as to food adulteration within their own borders. In Connecticut during July and August 17 per cent of the milk was either inferior or grossly adulterated.

Miss Emily Bradley also read from Dr. Jenkins's paper, in which it was stated that adulterated foods were, on the whole, frauds, not poisons, and that there should be more intelligent public opinion on the food question. Wheat flour and meal are seldom adulterated, while H. O., Force, Zest, Ready Bits, etc., are pure cereal products, although their claims of nutritive value are often absurd. Tea and coffee are usually pure, although Java and Mocha coffee do not come such a distance. High price jellies are almost always pure, but corn-beef, sausages, Hamburg steak and spices are treated with cheap chemical preservatives which are tasteless and odorless but efficient. These preservatives are especially harmful to the ill and in general dyed goods or goods kept by preservatives are a fraud and a menace to health.

Miss Alice Lakey of Cranford, N. J., the speaker of the afternoon, was next introduced and spoke interestingly on "Food Adulteration. The Remedy," illustrating her lecture by many examples. Miss Lakey, who is a member of the state food committee of the General (National) Federation of Woman's Clubs and also chairman of the food investigation committee of the National Consumers' League, in opening said that the cardinal points of food adulteration were fraud and deceit. Massachusetts 25 years ago made a pure food crusade and for many years a national pure food bill has been before Congress and has not yet been passed, being always held up in the Senate. According to recent statistics from $375,000,000 to $750,000,000 are spent annually in this country for adulterated foods.

Food is sometimes adulterated by taking out a substance and putting nothing in its place, as in the case of spices; coffee is often mixed with wheat and artificial coffee; grape jelly is sometimes composed of gelatine, apples, glucose and coal tar dyes, and in many other ways food is not what it is claimed for it on the labels. Miss Lakey spoke of various Senators who were opposed to the pure food bill, among them being Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island, and of the opposition of the Manufacturers' Association and of the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association. The worst enemy of the whole question, however, Miss Lakey says, is woman, who should pledge herself that she will use only pure food. Already Pennsylvania has shut out all bogus goods, special laws being cared for this state and Kentucky.

Preservatives, saccharine and sodium sulphite are used for preservatives and coal tar products are used largely for coloring purposes, pieces of cloth dyed with catsup and lemon extract, for example being shown. Candy and fruit syrups for soda water are oftentimes adulterated, as are liquid eggs used by bakers and custard powder, formaldehyde, carbonate of soda, boric acid, salicylic acid and benzoic acid being some of the many preservatives used.

In conclusion, Miss Lakey said that housekeepers should see that the ingredients of goods are stated on the label, should stop ordering by telephone and make a fight for the Heyburn bill, by countenancing food adulteration women are supporting fraud, dishonesty and deceit. It is the poor who are suffering from adulterated foods and, if women wish to keep the golden rule, they should use their power and influence against this abuse.

At the close of the lecture a petition for the pure food bill, to be sent to the Rhode Island Senators from the Current Topics Club of Newport, was read and adopted, remarks on the subject being made by Mrs. Alfred G. Langley, Miss Sinnester and Dr. Mary E. Baldwin. A rising vote of thanks, proposed by Mrs. Harry G. Wilks, then brought a most instructive meeting in regard to a vital subject to a close.

LECTURE ON "VENICE AND ROME."

At Trinity Guild Hall last evening before a large audience Mr. Hermann T. Krafft of St. George's School gave an interesting lecture on "Venice and Rome," illustrated by a reflecting lantern, an instrument difficult of adjustment and requiring a very strong light. No slides are used as with a stereopticon, but any object may be shown. The light is reflected on the screen and the pictures are put in upside down that they may be seen right side up. Near the close of the lecture slides were used, the light being much brighter than with the stereopticon. The reflecting lantern pictures are not very steady or brilliant, but, as the adjustment improves, the pictures improve likewise. The reflecting lantern is useful for teachers, as by it pictures of text manuscripts, for example, may be thrown on the screen. Among the pictures, colored and uncolored, shown by Mr. Krafft on "Rome" were the Roman Forum, the Temple of Saturn, the Coliseum, the Baths of Caracalla, the Appian Way, the Claudian Aqueduct and the Catacombs as illustrative of ancient Rome, and as illustrative of mediæval Rome, St. Peter's, the Vatican, etc.

Venice was built about 360 or 100 A. D. by an Indo-Germanic tribe, the Venetti, the whole of the city being built on piles. The Doge's Palace and St. Mark's were shown, as well as the Rialto and many other fine views of the Islands and water streets of Venice.

AT THE AUTOMOBILE SHOWS.

New Features for the Comfort and Pleasure of Mr. Millionaire.

Observations Regarding Speed, Style, Size and Other Details of the Machine.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

This year there were two automobile shows, taking place simultaneously in New York—one at the Madison Square Garden, where they have always been held in the past, and the other at the new Sixty-ninth Regiment armory on Twenty-sixth street. The first was the exclusive show, confined, I believe, to licenses under the Selden patent; the second, an open show, where one might see, in addition to certain well known makes, such as Ford, Reo and White cars, a host of others of lesser fame. An exhibition of airships, too, added to the attraction of this show, which, while not so ornate in decoration as the Garden exhibit, was yet well patronized by those interested in self-propelled vehicles.

A feature of both exhibits were the free shows going on all day outside, weather permitting. Most of the manufacturers had cars on the street so that intending purchasers might make a trial then and there. This must have offered a temptation often yielded to, to obtain a ride for nothing, and the persons suddenly seized with the auto fever in view of this opportunity were no doubt legion. However, no harm is done. Indeed, it is conceivable that a real craving for motor possession may be generated in the soul of the tyro, which nothing short of ultimate satisfaction will appease.

This year the typical car shown was the four cylinder tonneau, horsepower 25-30, weight somewhere about 2,000 pounds, price $2,250 up. The wheels and tires are larger than last year, the side entrance has been adopted almost universally, and the running board has superseded the steps. Such a machine should climb an average hill on the high gear and at a good speed, and should be able to attain to 40 miles per hour on the level.

There is still a difference of opinion as to the relative merits of the two-cycle and the four-cycle engine, the air-cooled and the water-cooled motor, and the chain and beveled-gear transmission, but it may be said that air cooling and the two-cycle engine are gaining ground. There can be little reason, however, for disputing the merits of the device wherewith one can start his machine without cranking—that is, from the seat—and with equal ease control his speed from 5 to 50 miles per hour without changing gears. Then, too, brakes are made stronger, and in several machines three are provided which act on the axle and directly on the transmission as well.

When all is said, one suspects that it would be a difficult problem, even for an expert, to select from among the 40 or 45 leading makes one particular car which he could designate as distinctly superior to the others. Perhaps, then, the ignoramus may comfort himself with the thought that in the choice of an automobile nowadays it is truly "folly to be wise," and may turn his whole attention to the construction and outfitting of his machine above the chassis or under frame. Supposing money to be no object, let us consider a few of the needs of the prospective buyer.

First and foremost, the comfort of Mr. Millionaire must be provided for. There must be no jaltings as he dashes at breakneck speed over railroad crossings and around curves. The finest springs and the most ingenious devices of the modern mechanic must be employed to take up all jar before it can be transmitted to the rider. With this end two so-called shock absorbers or suspensions are now on the market. Acting somewhat as does one's knee joint on alighting after a jump, they yield first in proportion to the amount of pressure placed upon them. Then, presumably with the same end in view, tires are to be made larger and device are shown to prevent them from skidding on slippery roads or in rounding curves.

In the matter of bodies—shape, color, size and finish—Mr. Millionaire has a wide range of choice. The prospects are that he will choose one of the limousine, enclosed bodies, which are so popular nowadays. The interior must of course be fitted with every convenience. Everything that the owner may desire for a long or for a short trip is there ready to his hand. A special heating system keeps him warm even in the coldest of weather. There is a speaking tube, with which he can communicate at will with the chauffeur; there are lunch baskets and receptacles for his food when he is on tour, and ice chests for his use in summer time. Of course, special provision is made for his luggage. The interior of the car is lighted by electricity and provision is made for ventilation in case of bad weather. In short, whatever be the duration of his trip, Mr. Millionaire may rest assured that all his wants have been forestalled and his comfort and safety provided for to the highest degree.

As I have already remarked, the side entrance has practically superseded the rear and the front entrance, and the running board is used not only as a step but as a support for certain tanks and batteries connected with the engine. The wheel base of this year's car is as long as it can conveniently be made, as this adds to its easy riding qualities, though at the same time making turning in a small space more difficult.

On entering the up-to-date car Mr. Chauffeur starts the engine simply by a pressure of the foot. This new method removes all temptation to keep the engine at work while the car is at a stand. The machine may be started immediately on the high gear, and should a change of gears become necessary it may be effected so smoothly that practically all racking is avoided. A choice of brakes is ready to the driver's hand or foot, and a device is provided which makes it impossible for a car to run backward on a steep grade.

The new thing in automobiles this year may be said to be the six and even eight-cylinder engines to be found in ordinary touring cars. There is a general tendency away from the light, low horse-power runabout to the heavier, many-cylindered car. One maker, it is true, has brought out a new runabout, but even this is noticeable for its four cylinders, giving it presumably more power on hills and through rough country.

A correspondent for Harper's Weekly going among the agents recently with a request for information concerning the "poor man's car," was received with but little enthusiasm. The dealers were too much absorbed with palace touring cars and the like to pay much attention to the man on the lookout for a $500 machine. Of course their cry is: First cost is a small item; cost of maintenance is the thing, and that we reduce by care in construction and the use of only the best materials. Why, look at our year's guarantee against breaks or accidents. What if the first cost is a bit higher; see what you are getting! Mr. Poorman smiles wistfully at this. Somehow the argument doesn't appeal to him. That $3,000 in a lump looks mighty big, while the incidental expenses, large or small, are in the dim distance and could be faced as occasion required, a little at a time.

Of steam cars one hears but little; of electrics perhaps more than ever. There are but few types of the former in the shows, while the latter class is well represented, and in styles to suit the fastidious taste of the city dweller. Modern science seems in a fair way to solve the problem of the electrically-propelled vehicle, and as the batteries are made lighter and the traveling radius increased these cars will undoubtedly become increasingly popular for country as well as for city use. Still, for the present at any rate, gasolene is king and the master minds which have applied themselves to the solution of the problems incidental to this method of propulsion on both sides of the Atlantic have brought it to a state of perfection which is a credit alike to their genius and their perseverance.

"THE JOHN CLARK MEMORIAL."

To the Editor of the News:

Dear Sir: The communication of your correspondent X in the issue of January 23, regarding the name for the new church soon to be formed, is of special interest at this time. Monday evening next the Second and Central churches will vote favorably to the union, and as the subject is being discussed among the members of each church there seems to be a strong desire expressed by many that a new name be adopted. All will agree that the name suggested by X will be very appropriate, and if adopted doubtless will be satisfactory to a majority of the members of the two churches. "The John Clarke Memorial" is the choice of

Very truly yours,

THE Y. M. C. A. CANVASS.

The canvass for funds for the new Young Men's Christian Association buildings continues, and although the first week's work is expected in a large measure to be devoted to solicitation, without perhaps immediate results, there is still a good increase to report. The sub-committee chairmen have not yet reported every subscription which has been made, but yesterday and today, including the $1,000 of Messrs. McLean and King, $1,725 was added to the fund. The subscriptions not already reported are as follows:

TOO LATE FOR THIS YEAR.

Proposition to Give the Appointment to the Mayor.

Governor Utter Personally Does Not Favor a State-Appointed Commission.

[Providence News.]

Regarding the talk of possible appointment on the Newport Police Commission, which was heard at the State House today, Governor George H. Utter said he was not to make an appointment until after the thirtieth of this month, but that whatever legislation is pending or projected to put the appointing power of the Police Commission in the hands of the mayor could not come soon enough to relieve him of the task. He said he thought the position of the mayor of Providence, that he should have the authority put up to him and should bear the responsibility for all his acts as city executive in the fullest measure, was proper. Personally he said he does not approve of the theory of state-appointed commissions for local affairs, and intimated that the farther away from the people they went the greater chance for misgovernment there would be.

"I do not think that centralization of power in state or national affairs is good policy on the whole, although I grant that there are some things of which the state can take care better than the towns, and some things that the national government is better qualified to look out for. This talk of placing the appointments in the hands of the city executive is leaving a way open to jobs and deals."

The idea of giving the city and town officials proper authority over their respective places, and holding them up to the full measure of responsibility, was subscribed to by the governor when the now well known opinion of Mayor Elisha Dyer of Providence was cited, in connection with the report that was earlier circulated, that an attempt would be made to give the mayor of Providence the appointing of the commission, which the city has to pay salaries to, and which controls what is considered one of its most important departments, the police.

COULDN'T HEAR THE FOG WHISTLES.

The Buccaneer, which arrived at Providence yesterday from Baltimore, with barges Dessong and Montana, was obliged to anchor off the coast Tuesday on account of the fog, and because the whistles or sirens on Brenton's Reef Lightship and Beaver Tail could not be heard. The Buccaneer and the two barges came around Block Island early Tuesday morning, and headed for Newport, intending to come up the bay to Providence by the east passage. As the tow drew in near the lightship not a sound was heard from it, although the siren on Point Judith was going. Not daring to venture in closer to land in the fog without the help of the siren on the lightship, the tug took her barges some distance off shore, and at 10 o'clock anchored them. Between 2 and 3 o'clock the sound of the siren on the lightship was heard and the anchors were hoisted and the start was made for Newport.

Captain Friend of the Dessong said yesterday that the whistle on Beaver Tail was silent or could not be heard for much of this time, while the tow needed its help in finding its way into the entrance of the bay.

"THE MARQUANDS."

"The Marquands," who were burned out in Hamilton, Ontario, recently, are spending their enforced lay-off here, with Mr. Sullivan's family. The company with which the couple were playing will re-open early next month in New York state. Mr. Sullivan says he has had but 11 idle weeks in the three years he has been on the stage. He no longer does juggling, but both he and his wife ride wheels on the wire, he working the stack wire and she the foot. Mr. Sullivan is a product of the local theatre stage, having picked up juggling on the wire while working there, and has now revamped his act so that he readily secures engagements both summer and winter and has performed in all parts of the country and Canada.

REAL BASKET BALL.

Disagreement Over Score, But Holy Name Team Wins Over Galahads, According to Rules.

Last night at Hazard hall the Galahad and St. Joseph Holy Name teams played in the junior league series and had a real basket ball game. It was sharp and fast from the very beginning, and the Galahads sustained the opinion expressed by some impartial observers and showed that they are to be prominent factors in the struggle for the championship. The work of their backs was especially strong and accurate, as may be seen by noticing the lack of scoring by the Holy Name forwards. It was only by the centre and backs coming up that Holy Name was able to keep in the game. The team work of the visitors was the best shown in the league, and the game was from the start an interesting one to watch.

There was a dispute about the score. At the end of the first half the score board and the Holy Name scorer had the Galahads leading, 13 to 11, while the Galahad scorer said the figures were 13 to 9. The two scorers and the bulletin boy agreed on the score in the second half, but those two points still remained, and while the Holy Name score showed that Holy Name had won 25 to 24, the Galahad's had their team winning, 24 to 23. There was some talk about playing the game over and other things. Aside from this disagreement, the game was all right. Under rule VIII of Spalding's rules, under which the games are played, the score was 25 to 24 in favor of Holy Name. The line-up:

| Holy Name. | | Galahad. |
|---|---|---|
| Roche, l. f. | | l. f., Gibson |
| Sheehan, Sullivan, r. f. | | r. f., Curtisc. Briggs |
| Cornelius, c. | | l. g., Fludder |
| Harvey, l. g. | | r. g., Wrenquest |
| Curran, r. g. | | |

Score—Holy Name 25; Galahad 24. Baskets—Roche 1, Sullivan 2, Cornelius 6, Harvey, 1, Curran 1; Gibson 3, Curtis 3, Briggs 2, Wrenquest 3. Fouls—Cornelis 3; Gibson 1, Curtis 1. Referee—Moore. Umpire—Pitman.

"THE WHITE HOUSE."

[Lyford, in Hotel Gazette.]

In harmony with its name, "The White House," the recently acquired estate on Cottage street by Mrs. Annandale S. Muenchinger, of the Muenchinger-King and Hill Top Cottages, is to be painted "very light." The interior will be done over in new papers, repainted and re-furnished throughout in artistic effects. Then there will be numerous new baths of approved design, to meet the requirements of the high-class Muenchinger-King clientele.

It is the intention to so arrange "The White House" that it may be used by one or more patrons, or by a whole family, desiring the entire house at short notice. In this feature "The White House" will be at once distinctive as well as ideal in its adaptability in meeting the demands that a long Newport experience has suggested to the management.

LARGE REWARD FOR LOST VANDERBILT JEWEL.

One thousand dollars reward has been offered by W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., through Tiffany & Co., for the return of one of the most valuable jewelled pendants in his wife's collection, which she lost Sunday last, either in the St. Regis Hotel, New York, or during a subsequent drive to her home, at Seventy-fifth street and Riverside Drive.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who sailed for Europe with her husband on the Kaiser Wilhelm II Tuesday, places all the greater value on the jewel, a ruby and pear shaped pearl pendant, because, aside from its intrinsic value, it is one of the oldest of the Vanderbilt heirlooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt attended a dinner and musicale given by Mr. and Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont in the St. Regis last Sunday night. Mrs. Vanderbilt, who did not miss the jewel until she arrived at her home, was positive that she still had it in her possession during the Belmont dinner, and also subsequently during the musicale in an adjoining suite.

When his wife discovered her loss Mr. Vanderbilt immediately telephoned to the police. A search of the carriage in which the Vanderbilts had returned home from the St. Regis disclosed no trace of the pendant.

JEWELERS.

It Has Been Said

That if a person has $50 to spend he goes to Providence, if he has $100 he goes to Boston, if he has $500 he goes to New York. If you are one of this class of persons, the next time you have an important jewelry purchase to make, come and see us; we will go to any trouble to get just what you wish, and we know where to get the extra-fine things, too. Then the money will get back to you quicker than if you carry it off to some distant city. Remember that Newport needs all the money that can be kept here.
